Possible plot to kill President uncovered

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The Secret Service Monday disclosed a "possible conspiracy" to assassinate President Nixon and diverted his motorcade from famed Canal Street. Federal agents later exchanged gunshots at a New Mexico commune with a man said to have threatened the President, but he escaped.

Secret Service agents said Edwin Michael Gaudet, 30, a former New Orleans policeman, broke away from two agents at a mountain commune near Arroyo Hondo, N.M., and fired two shots as he ran.

"He had a high powered rifle," Taos County Sheriff Arthur Trujillo said. "And he knew the area pretty well."

Gaudet was accused in a federal warrant with making a threat against Nixon in a New Orleans business establishment last Wednesday. A Secret Service spokesman in Washington said the warrant against Gaudet was not "tied to the New Orleans conspiracy today."

Agents said Gaudet had been living at the commune "for about a year." The search for him was delayed until morning.

Nixon, who publicly ignored the threat but agreed to the change in the motorcade's route, made his scheduled afternoon speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Rivergate Auditorium and then departed for California without incident.

Hundreds of Secret Service and FBI agents converged on the city for the brief presidential visit. The Secret Service spurred a search for an ex-policeman who threw a burning flag at Nixon's limousine three years ago.

The public disclosure was the first by the Secret Service in Nixon's presidency of a threat against his life in advance of a trip.

Edwin M. Gaudet Jr.

The President was advised of the possible plot Sunday night in Florida. An hour before he left for New Orleans, the Secret Service announced in Washington only bare details.

New Orleans police were asked by the Secret Service to pick up the former policeman, Edwin Michael Gaudet Jr., 30. Officers said he was believed in New Mexico.

The Rivergate Auditorium, the convention site at the foot of Canal Street, was like an armed camp for Nixon's first public appearance in six weeks. Riflemen were on the roof and nearby buildings as a helicopter circled overhead.

It was virtually impossible for the street crowds to get near Nixon during his 2 hour, 8 minute visit.

"For approximately a week," Police Superintendent Clarence M. Giarrusso said, "we have been working on an attempt to assassinate the President. As of this moment, we do not have what we would regard as sufficient evidence (of a conspiracy)."

Gaudet was accused in a federal warrant with making a threat against Nixon in a New Orleans business establishment last Wednesday. The warrant said witnesses quoted Gaudet as saying, "Somebody ought to kill President Nixon. If no one has the guts, I'll do it."

However, the Secret Service and police emphasized that Gaudet might not be involved in the plot.

Giarrusso would not comment on other possible suspects because it might "interfere with the ongoing investigation." He said the "hard evidence that we have indicates that it (possible plot) would be here in New Orleans."

Four other persons reportedly were under surveillance.

That report came Sunday from a newspaper columnist in the town that once served as the setting for an elaborate tale about an assassination plot in the death of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas a decade ago.

Brenda changes course

MIAMI — Hurricane Brenda, packing winds of 80 miles per hour, changed course Monday night and appeared headed for land Tuesday morning just west of the Gulf coastal town of Carmen, Mexico. The National Hurricane Center said the storm, the season's second hurricane, had taken a turn to the south-southwest and if it hits the Carmen region "heavy rains will spread over the northern slopes Tuesday afternoon and cause serious flooding."

GOP shouldn't be hasty

WASHINGTON — The White House cautioned key Republican congressmen against speaking out too hastily in support of Vice President Agnew after the disclosure that criminal charges were being considered against him, government sources said. Meanwhile, U. S. Attorney George Beall raised the possibility he may reject Agnew's offer to privately discuss allegations he received contract kickbacks while governor of Maryland.

Floods ravage Pakistan

ISLAMABAD — The rain-swollen Indus river in Pakistan Monday breached a vital embankment near the Sukkar Barrage, about 250 miles north of Karachi, intensifying what the government already has declared a national disaster. Rivers in India were also over their banks and monsoon rains in the desert state of Rajasthan stranded a train with 1,000 passengers in waist-deep water. The flooding in Pakistan, which the government says has ruined the nation's economy, has inundated more than 20,000 square miles of crops at an estimated cost of $600 million.

Garrison unconcerned

NEW ORLEANS — District Attorney Jim Garrison took a break from his federal bribery trial Monday and indicated to newsmen he wasn't too concerned about an alleged conspiracy to assassinate President Nixon in his city. "I think there's a serious question whether or not it would fall in the category of assassination — shooting Richard Nixon," the 6-foot-6 Garrison said. "But that's a philosophical question." "Why do you say that?" "Huh?" "Why do you say that?" "I'm not a pro-Nixon man," Garrison said. "I'd rather get back to the trial if you'd like for me to say something about the case."

Suitcase full of diamonds

DUBLIN — An Australian woman is flying home unaware that the suitcase shipped with her apparently contains not her clothes but $82,500 worth of diamonds, Irish police and airline officials said Monday. Her clothes are in another bag unloaded during the plane's stopover here and carrying a label indicating it was the one containing the diamonds. The woman was identified as Gail Cleaver of Hayward, Australia, who flew to Shannon airport from Copenhagen late Sunday night. On Monday she was enroute to Perth, Australia and so, presumably, were the diamonds.

Laos crushes coup attempt

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Forces loyal to Prince Souvanna Phouma restored order in Vientiane Monday and searched rice paddies outside the town for the last of the rightwing exile rebels who unsuccessfully attempted to seize power from him in a predawn coup.

The government announced that the leader of the abortive coup, exiled former Air Force Commander Thao Ma, was shot to death while trying to escape from the wreckage of his T28 plane, which was shot down over the Vientiane airport. The government said Ma's plane was shot down about 10:30 a.m., six and a half hours after the coup began.

The coup apparently was hatched by a group of former Laotian military men living in exile in Thailand and aimed at blocking negotiations between Souvanna and the Communist Pathet Lao. The two sides, which already have established a cease-fire, are trying to set up a coalition government to end years of fighting.

Fourteen other leaders of the coup were captured, the government said, including Col. Pany Phounthitsavan, a deputy leader of the coup. Some leaders reportedly managed to commandeer an air force helicopter and flee across the nearby border to Thailand, the government statement said.

Troops in armored personnel carriers patrolled rice paddies outside the town looking for any remaining rebels, but life in Vientiane appeared normal. The government said in an official communique that government forces were completely in control of Vientiane at midday and the search for the remaining rebels was still going on.

The Laos ambassador in to Thailand, Keo Vipakron, said in Bangkok that about 60 men were involved. He said a 7 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew had been ordered in Vientiane "for a few days in order to keep the situation under control."

Beall may reject talk with Agnew

BALTIMORE (UPI) — U. S. Attorney George Beall raised the possibility Monday he may reject Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's offer for a private discussion of allegations that Agnew received contract kickbacks while governor of Maryland.

Time Magazine, meantime, reported that a federal grand jury is expected to indict Agnew next month on charges including bribery and extortion, quoting sources as saying that three Maryland contractors now have reported making such payments to him.

Beall, heading the two-year-old investigation of the alleged kickback scheme, told newsmen the government has not decided whether to take Agnew up on his written offer to meet privately with investigators in addition to turning over his financial records for the period in question.

"The (Agnew) letter raises the suggestion that such a meeting would be desirable from his standpoint," Beall said. "I can't say if the government sees it as desirable. Things have to be thought through."

Beall's staff continued going through the Agnew financial documents they copied in the vice president's Washington office Friday, but Beall declined to comment on that aspect of the case.

But he did say that the grand jury, going into double sessions this week, would hand down indictments on a case-by-case basis in the event it finds probable cause against individuals over a period of time.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Nixon, visibly tense after disclosure of a possible plot to assassinate him, said Monday he ordered secret bombing in neutral Cambodia in 1969 to save American lives and bring a quicker end to the Vietnam War.

In his first personal response to critics of the secret bombing, Nixon claimed that "appropriate members of Congress" were informed of the action and the Cambodian government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk approved of it.

"I'm proud of what we've done," the perspiring President told 4,500 members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) at their national convention.

Outside the Rivergate Auditorium in downtown New Orleans, strict security prevented any incidents during Nixon's two-hour visit to the city. The Secret Service uncovered the possible assassination plot and sought a former policeman who tried to throw a burning flag on Nixon's car three years ago. Four other persons reportedly were under surveillance.

Nixon, his wife Pat nearby, did not mention the threat in his 30-minute speech devoted largely to his decision to send bombers over Cambodia.

"If American soldiers in the field today were similarly threatened and if the price of protecting those soldiers was to order air strikes to save American lives, I would make the same decision today that I made in February, 1969," he told the cheering VFW delegates.

Nixon said 40,000 North Vietnamese troops had concentrated along a 10-mile strip on the Cambodian-Vietnamese border, and added:

"The suggestion that these staging areas for enemy troops, supplies and artillery a few thousand yards from American troops were neutral territory exempt from bombing and counter-attack is ludicrous."

"It was not the United States, but the North Vietnamese Communists who violated the neutrality of Cambodia."

The President flew to New Orleans from Key Biscayne,

Fla., then left after the speech for the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif.

He arrived at El Toro Marine Air Base at 2:13 p.m. PDT.

In the speech he said Sihanouk approved the bombing and even invited him to visit Cambodia while the strikes were in progress.

Nixon said he directed that the Cambodian bombing be kept secret because otherwise "the Cambodian government would have been compelled to protest."

"The bombing would have had to stop and American soldiers would have paid for disclosure with their lives."

Nixon was informed Sunday night at Key Biscayne by G. Alexander M. Haig, White House chief of staff, that the Secret Service had uncovered the "possible conspiracy to assassinate the President. Nixon agreed to a change in the route of a motorcade into New Orleans but refused a suggestion that he cancel the Louisiana visit."

Firefighters battle vast fires over 118,000 acres

By United Press International

One of the largest firefighting armies ever assembled Monday battled the West's worst fires in 20 years across 118,000 acres of forest and range land in five states.

Fires were still out of control in 90,000 acres, the Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho, reported. Officials said fires in another 28,000 more acres were under control.

In California, four major blazes were burning in forests in the Sierra mountain range between Yosemite National Park and Lake Tahoe. Numerous smaller fires were also reported.

About 700 miles to the north, a fire broke out of control in remote Hell's Canyon on the Oregon-Idaho border.

"Every factor imaginable has ganged up to help create this situation," said a spokesman for the Interagency Center.

The unusually dry summer, a series of dry lightning storms, dry winds and high temperatures have been blamed by authorities for the worst fires in 20 years.

As firefighters managed to bring some fires under control, chartered commercial jetliners and Air Force transports ferried them to new outbreaks.

At least 6,200 firefighters were on the fire lines, reinforced in some areas by National Guard troops, gangs of conservation camp inmates, college student volunteers and other experienced helpers.

Leonard said the situation had improved in parts of Oregon, Idaho and Montana. Fires that were burning over the weekend in Wyoming, Utah and Washington were listed as contained or controlled.

Strong gusty winds drove a fire in Hell's Canyon over firelines during the night.

"We lost everything we had controlled," said a U.S. Forest Service spokesman in reporting the blaze had grown from 2,200 acres to more than 4,500 acres and still out of control.

One home was destroyed and several threatened by a fire being fought by National Guardsmen and Forest Service crews near Klamath Falls on the Oregon-California line.

A young firefighter was injured in battling a blaze near the Oregon mountain city of La Grande. Mike Kent, 19, had to be carried out from rugged country where flames spread after townspeople joined Forest Servicemen and National Guard units in turning it back from the city limits.

In California, a roaring fire that has ravaged more than 15,000 acres of valuable timber in the Stanislaus National Forest near Yosemite Park was expected to be contained.

Officials revised downward their damage estimates to $28 million from an earlier figure of $50 million.

Soldier charged with espionage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 35-year-old Air Force sergeant has been charged with espionage for allegedly trying to pass secret military documents to a Russian agent in New York City last month, the Defense Department said Monday.

Officials said Sgt. James D. Wood of Tacoma, Wash., was charged Friday under U.S. military law and five sections of the federal treason laws — one of which carries a maximum penalty of death or life imprisonment. He was being held at Ft. Dix, N.J., pending further investigation.

Wood, an 18-year Air Force veteran, was arrested in New York July 21 when FBI agents found the highly classified documents in the trunk of his rental car, according to military sources. He was assigned to the highly secret Air Force office of special investigation at the time of his arrest.

Time Magazine reported that Wood, apparently motivated by money, was taken into custody after FBI agents followed an unidentified Russian diplomat from Washington to New York because they suspected him of spying.

The Russian agent claimed diplomatic immunity and was turned over to the Soviet consulate in New York. The State Department said Monday the diplomat was reassigned after informal consultations between department officials and the Soviet embassy in Washington.

The Soviet embassy told U.S. officials he had been scheduled to be reassigned anyway. He left the country and no formal request was lodged for his departure, a spokesman said.

Military officials did not disclose the nature of the documents found in Wood's car, but Time described them as U.S. counter-intelligence procedures and military data showing what the United States had learned about the Soviet Union.

The specific charges against Wood were not known. But the Defense Department identified five sections of the Espionage Chapter of the U.S. Criminal Code under which he was charged.

One of the five sections provides for death or imprisonment up to life for anyone who, with reason to believe he is injuring the United States or aiding a foreign nation, turns over a document, code book or photograph to a foreign government.

Kennedy guilty on motor charge

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — Joseph P. Kennedy III, oldest son of the late Robert F. Kennedy, was convicted Monday of negligent driving that resulted in an accident which at least temporarily paralyzed a teen-age girl. He was fined $100.

"You had a great father and you have a great mother," District Court Judge George

Court order delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge William B. Jones ruled Monday that the White House does not have to comply with his order to turn over several presidential documents until an appeals court rules on President Nixon's claims of executive privilege.

Jones had ordered the White House to bring the documents to his chambers by Aug. 16 for a private inspection after the White House claimed they were exempt from disclosure because of executive privilege. But the Justice Department sought a delay in the order so the ruling could be appealed.

The documents are sought by a Ralph Nader organization in a suit it filed claiming the White House raised milk price supports in 1971 because of large contributions by the dairy industry to the Nixon re-election campaign.

Jones said he issued the delay to allow the appeal court time to consider the issue of executive privilege.

In granting the government's request, Jones emphasized that he is not retreating from his "earlier view that private inspection of the documents is required under present law."

Anastas told the 20-year-old Kennedy, "Use your illustrious name as an asset instead of coming into court like this."

Kennedy, who pleaded innocent and did not testify, was accompanied to the crowded court by his mother, Ethel, and his uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

A jeep-like vehicle driven by Kennedy and carrying six other persons including his brother David, 18, overturned a week ago at an intersection on this vacation island. David and two girl passengers were injured.

Francesca De Onis, 18, another passenger, said Kennedy was driving the Toyota about 15 miles an hour but accelerated and swerved at the intersection to avoid an oncoming car operated by Merrill Lindsay.

"I thought we were going to make it when the car (driven by Kennedy) got back on the pavement, and then it flipped," Miss De Onis said. "I was horrified."

Defense counsel Wayne Holmes said if Kennedy had not speeded up, the Lindsay car would have "cut them in half."

Lindsay testified he was moving 35 to 40 miles per hour when he saw the Kennedy vehicle "coming toward me in my lane." He said he braked his car and swerved left as Kennedy swerved to the right and accelerated.

Bill Carlton, the investigating policeman, testified Kennedy said "the accident was entirely his fault."

Miss De Onis said there were seats for everyone in the Kennedy vehicle but assistant District Attorney Robert Mooney said it had a capacity for only four.

Sandra Peterson, driver of a sightseeing bus, testified she saw the Kennedy vehicle prior to the accident and "People were hanging all over. Some were standing up."

Pentagon allows soldiers to be servants for brass

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Revising a 13-year-old directive, the Pentagon Monday made public a new regulation specifically authorizing generals and admirals to use enlisted volunteers as valets, social secretaries, cooks, waiters and errand runners.

"The propriety of such duties is governed by the official purpose which they serve, rather than the nature of the duties," Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements said in the directive.

Clements said only volunteers could be assigned as enlisted aides.

Clements' new directive, dated Thursday, drew an immediate blast from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who initiated a fight in February against the traditional use of enlisted men as servants for top brass.

"Secretary Clements' directive comes right out of the 18th Century," Proxmire said in a statement issued by his Washington office. "It is an example of aristocratic arrogance."

"The Clements directive gives generals and admirals the use of servants in military clothing. They can act as butlers, cooks, housekeepers, bartenders, secretaries and errand boys. This is an intolerable situation and is a disgrace to the armed services."

Proxmire said he would introduce next month an amendment to prohibit "the use of GI servants by U. S. officers." He introduced similar legislation in February, but the Senate Armed Services Committee has taken no action on it.

Clements' directive, going beyond the 1960 regulation it replaced, also authorized the armed forces to request the defense secretary to assign enlisted aides to officers below the rank of general and admiral "where representation requirements dictate."

Defense officials indicated this would apply to overseas posts where colonels sometimes serve as the ranking American officer in an area. No such provision existed in the 1960 directive.

Securities sale stopped

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state Securities Commission Monday ordered American Food Management of Allentown to stop further sales of securities.

James P. Breslin, chairman of the commission, said a cease and desist order was based on investigations showing the company engaged in selling high interest securities without disclosing its poor financial condition to prospective investors.

Rogers wary over U.S. 'illegal' action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Monday while discussing Watergate that he felt it was important for the government "not to get so obsessed with security matters that laws are so freely violated."

At a news conference, Rogers said "great care should be shown before any extralegal action is taken."

On the other hand, Rogers said, the government and public should not become overly obsessed with matters connected with Watergate, saying this could have an adverse affect.

Rogers, attorney general in the Eisenhower administration, said that in determining when the government was justified in taking extralegal actions in the name of national security, it was very difficult to decide just "where to draw the line."

"Generally speaking, I lean to strict observance of the legal position," he added.

Rogers was asked to give his general views on the broad issues of national security. He hesitated to do so because this was "very dangerous terrain."

However, addressing himself specifically to the Watergate affair, Rogers said that he believed it was important not to get so obsessed with security matters that laws are freely violated.

Rogers has said that while he was attorney general he approved of wiretaps "in a limited number of cases" and that Congress was always advised. He noted that the exact position on such activities had never been agreed and recent Presidents in general had taken the position they were authorized to wiretap when national security interests were involved. He added, however:

"I think extreme caution should be exercised before extralegal action is taken in the name of national security."

During the Watergate investigation, it was disclosed that telephones of several persons were tapped as part of an administration effort as long as three years ago to determine the source of leaks of secret government information.

Rogers said he thought there was no difference between public statements made by him and by President Nixon regarding the effect of Watergate on the conduct of American foreign policy.

Return of body costly to widow

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI) — A widowed mother needs $3,200 so that the body of her 16-year-old daughter who was killed in an auto accident in Morocco last week can be shipped home.

If Mrs. Geraldine Pypelink, of nearby Lima, cannot raise the money, the body of her daughter, Faith Anne, will be buried in Tangier. Mrs. Pypelink, who works as a secretary to support two other teen-aged daughters, vowed that "if I have to borrow, scrimp and save, I'll get my daughter home."

Mrs. Pypelink said she has appealed without success to her parish priest, elected officials and John Cardinal Krol.

She said if she chose, she could have Faith Anne buried in Morocco for $260 "but I want my daughter home."

A State Department spokesman said if the necessary $3,200 to ship the body back to the United States is not received, then the girl will have to be buried in Morocco.

Prime interest rate up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 14th increase in the prime interest rate this year, raising it to another new record of 9 1/2 per cent, was announced Monday by First National Bank of Chicago. Five other big banks followed suit immediately across the country.

The new rate is effective today.

Franklin National Bank of New York, Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, Union Bank of California, Bank of California and Continental International Bank & Trust Co. adopted the new rate after the Chicago bank announcement.

Vice Chairman Chauncey E. Schmidt said the Chicago bank's rate fixing formula actually called for a prime rate of 10 3/4 per cent based on the Federal Reserve System's index on dealer offered 90-day commercial paper loan rates.

If the rate increase becomes general among large commercial banks, it will apply only to loans to the largest business customers.

Soapbox winner disqualified

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — James H. Gronen, of Boulder, Colo., who won the 1973 All-American Soap Box Derby, Saturday, was disqualified Monday by Derby officials after an illegal magnetic system was found in his homemade racer.

Paul C. Livick, Derby general manager, said Gronen had built an electro-magnetic system in the nose of his racer "to help pull the car from the starting place."

Bret A. Yarborough of Elk Grove, Calif., who finished second to Gronen in the race, was named the winner.

It was the first time in the 36-year history of the event that an apparent winner had been disqualified.

The 14-year-old Gronen's sleek green racer rolled down the 953.75-foot paved hill and flashed across the finish line only a few inches ahead of the car driven by the 11-year-old Californian in the final heat of the 36th running of the derby.

Winner of the Soap Box Derby gets a $7,500 scholarship.

Price increase hearings for steel, cars scheduled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council (CLC) Monday scheduled hearings next week to determine if price increases announced by the automobile and steel industry would set back the administration's anti-inflation campaign.

The Big Four automakers already have said they will boost prices on their 1974 model cars and several steel companies have filed price increase notifications with the government.

Under the rules of Phase IV of the Economic Stabilization Program, price boosts by big corporations automatically take effect in 30 days unless challenged by the CLC.

The hearings could lay the groundwork for such a challenge if the companies fail to prove that their price increases are justified by higher costs.

The CLC also could turn down the requests if it feels the increases would be "unreasonably inconsistent" with the goals of the administration's price-fighting stabilization program.

"We are particularly interested in examining the potential impact the prenotified price increases in the auto and steel industries could have on the total economy," said CLC Director John T. Dunlop.

The auto hearings will be held Aug. 28. According to the council, the increases planned by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors are entirely related to higher costs of installing safety and clean air equipment required by the government. These include improved exhaust systems, energy-absorbing bumpers and a system that prevents the car from starting unless safety belts are fastened.

The steel hearings will be Aug. 30-31. Dunlop said they "will explore facts relating to cost justification, relationship of prices, profits, capital investment and plant capacity, and the effect of productivity improvement on costs and profits in the basic steel industry."

Cabinet post

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp Monday elevated Lawrence J. Beaser to serve as counsel to the governor, a cabinet-level post paying $25,000 a year.

Beaser for the past 10 months has been Shapp's acting counsel. The 27-year-old Dauphin County attorney served Shapp as associate counsel and deputy counsel.

Talks begin to merge two teachers' unions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dominated by talk of a long-sought merger between the nation's two largest teacher's union, the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) opened its 57th annual convention Monday promising to do all it could to unite with the 1.4 million-member National Educational Association (NEA).

David Selden, president of the 375,000 member AFT, said that he and union representatives would meet with NEA officials sometime after Labor Day to begin discussions on the proposed merger. The NEA membership agreed at its July 5 meeting in Portland, Ore., to discuss a possible merger.

A merger would make the teachers the second most powerful labor organization in the United States behind the 2.2-million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

"If 87 per cent of the teachers of the United States were in a single union it would be a great advance," Selden told newsmen, citing mergers in the labor field that formed such powerful interest groups as the Teamsters, building trades workers and auto workers.

He said a merger would help both students and teachers by improving staff-student ratios and cutting class size and teacher workloads.

Church outing successful

West End Bureau
BARTONSVILLE — More than 90 people attended St. John's Evangelical Congregational Church's annual corn and hot dog roast, which was held at the church grounds Saturday.

Staff members and counselors of the Twin Pines camp presented humorous skits and sang songs at the picnic.

A three-tiered cake baked by Mrs. Keturah Hartman and a basket of flowers from the church congregation were presented to Rev. A. R. Kratzer, D.D., and his wife in honor of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

A total of 125 people attended the church's special youth service on Sunday.

The St. John's council meeting, set to be held this week, has been postponed indefinitely. Members will be notified by mail when the next session will be held.

Homecoming services at St. John's have been set for October 14. Several services and guest speakers and singers will be featured on that day.

The last choral program to be presented this year by the Twin Pines group will be included as part of this Sunday's services at the church.

Pastor Kratzer will speak on "The Reality of Christ in Our Modern World."

Car fire extinguished

MOUNT POCONO — Robert Fairservice of Tobyhanna, a passing motorist, put out a car fire Sunday afternoon on Rte. 611 with a portable fire extinguisher.

Mount Pocono Fire Chief Robert Altemose said the fire was out when 12 men and two trucks arrived on the scene at 1:30 p.m.

He said the car was owned by Darryl Evans of Tobyhanna. Damages to the car were estimated at $60. Altemose said the fire was confined under the hood and was probably caused by a carburetor backfire.

Fines total $3,980

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Office of the Auditor General recently completed an audit of Allan W. Campfield, justice of the peace, Hawley.

The audit showed Campfield forwarded fines of $930 to the Fish Commission; $2,920 to the Revenue Department for motor vehicle fines; $105 to the Game Commission for fines collected; $25 to the Utility Commission for fines collected.

There were no irregularities reported in the audit.

Area residents graduate from nursing programs

BETHLEHEM — Commencement exercises for the graduates of the Easton Northampton County Area Vocational Technical and Bethlehem Area Vocational Technical schools practical nursing programs will be held at Northampton County Area Community College (NCACC) at 7:30 p.m. Friday, August 24 in the college theater on the south campus.

The nursing classes, which began at the two vo-tech schools but finished at NCACC, will be the first class to graduate from the college.

Guest speaker for the exercises will be Mrs. Mary Myers, vocational consultant for the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

Area graduates from the Eastern Northampton vo-tech school include Linda Bernan, Rosemary Powell and Susan Thek, all from Stroudsburg.

What is the attraction? Swimming, boating, the clean sandy beach, perhaps, but the main attraction has to be the five very suntanned lovely young lady lifeguards.

Not only are they curvaceous and personable, they are very serious about their jobs.

From Memorial Day to Labor Day they keep alert eyes on boaters and swimmers who visit the park.

Arlene Pearson, 21, of Scotrun, is the head lifeguard. She is in charge of scheduling the work. This is her third year as a State Park life guard. One summer was spent at Gouldsboro State Park and the past two years at Tobyhanna.

She is in her second year as a pre-med student at Fordham University, Bronx, N.Y., and plans to be a dentist.

Roberta Ross, 23, travels 60 miles from Scranton to the park and enjoys every minute of it.

She is a senior at Lock Haven College, majoring in elementary special education. She will graduate in January.

This is her first year at Tobyhanna. She doesn't know how many more opportunities she will have to be a lifeguard since she is being married in February.

Pat Neuweiler, 20, of Tobyhanna is winding up her second year at the park. Although she really enjoys working outdoors and her super tanned body is proof of it, she will be looking for secretarial work this fall.

Michele Sisak, 21, of Tobyhanna, has been at the job for two years. She is a senior at Marywood College, Scranton, majoring in English and psychology. Michele plans to continue her education by working toward her PHD in psychology.

Arlene "Scotty" Hill, 19, is from Philadelphia and spends her summers in Tobyhanna. A second year student at Penn State, she is majoring in Forestry.

There is no discrimination at the park. Lt. Riccardo Esposito a native of Kingston, N.Y., is the lone male lifeguard and not the least bit unhappy about it according to the girls.

Esposito is stationed at the Tobyhanna Army Depot and is on duty at the dispensary during the week. Weekends he is on duty at the park.

On a busy weekend there are as many as 3,000 to 3,500 people at the park and most are on the beach at one time or another.

Though no major accidents have occurred, there have been quite a few canoes and sailboats which have capsized.

The girls go into action when this happens. Using either a rowboat or the park's patrol boat they go out to the capsized craft, help right it and assist the people back into it.

One of the main problems the girls encounter are parents who tell their small children to go into the water "only to their knees" and then neglect to watch them.

The girls are always alert for this and have aided many a small tot when they fall over and can't get back up.

Being aware of this they have in all probability averted a drowning.

There are times when perhaps being a female, and young, is a disadvantage, according to the girls. During the course of the summer there are always a few people who become obnoxious because they are cautioned by these young ladies about doing something foolish or dangerous.

But on the whole, the girls say, most of the people are very cooperative.

Part of their job is house cleaning or beach cleaning.

The girls rake the sand and fill in holes dug by the children.

Everything from false teeth to babies' diapers are found while cleaning the beach.

Miss Ross said the greatest thrill for her was when she found a wedding ring belonging to a man who had only been married one year.

She was coming out of the water when she spotted it. She got so excited she pushed her mask off and knocked out her contact lens. "It was worth it," she said. "When I saw the look on his face when I gave him the ring, I didn't mind losing my lens."

Many questions are asked of the girls, but the one asked most is "why is the water red," and "why does it leave an oily feeling on the skin."

Being well versed on many subjects, they know this is caused by the decomposing of stumps and brush left in the lake, leaving the water acidic.

The girls are all Red Cross certified first aiders and very often are called to the camp and picnic areas to treat minor burns and cuts.

They all get along great with Esposito, the lone male of the group.

"We just let Ricky do all the work," Miss Pearson said jokingly.

Carbon fair runs through Saturday

ATHLETES TAKE HEED

While enjoying the benefits of physical exercise, athletes and sports enthusiasts can often receive injuries to their spine while playing. Such injuries may be anything from extreme twisting, sudden bending, or an unexpected fall, to a strenuous stretch or jerking that may even be part of the planned activity of the sport. Whatever the cause, the unapparent results can be misalignment of the vertebrae and ultimate nerve pressure in the spine which might lead to varying types of symptoms from pain, stiffness, aching in joints, headaches, neck pain — any number of body reactions.

Strangely enough, in many cases, the damage cannot be felt immediately upon the injury and is very often detected much later when symptoms begin to appear. Even then the connection between the physical exertion and the spinal injury resulting in nerve pressure may not be related unless and until chiropractic care is sought.

Garden tractors featured in West End Fair event

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter
GILBERT — Garden tractors will be competing for $30 in prizes in six different classes on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 1 at the West End Fair.

It is the first time that eight, 10, 12, 14 and 16 horsepower garden tractors, as well as an unlimited class, will be allowed to compete in the tractor pull; it is only the second year the fair has sponsored the event.

The garden tractors will begin competing Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. The main farm tractor pull, which will offer $125 in prizes in separate classes, is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

"Last year we had 35 tractors here and we got off about 50 pulls," commented Chester Snyder, former state representative of the Pennsylvania Tractor Pulling Assn., who is helping to organize the event at the West End Fair.

"We expect a major increase in the number of entries this year, especially with regard to the local farmers," he continued.

According to Elmer Kreger, the fair director who is chairman of the Tractor Pulling Contest Committee this year, a special pull track is being installed in the horse ring at the fairgrounds this week for the event.

"This is one of the best tractor pulls in the state," said Kreger, "and we have a special class for our local boys. In future years we hope to have the sanctioning of the state tractor pulling association for this event."

Kreger stressed that the fair instituted the contest last year to promote a knowledge of tractor capacities and safety in tractor operation, and to demonstrate tractor driving skill and good judgment in hauling heavy loads.

In the garden tractor pull, no mowers are allowed to be attached and one set of factory weights will be used in the first five classes. An unlimited class will also be included in the afternoon garden tractor pull.

The entry fee for the garden class is $2 per tractor. Residents can enter their machines in advance by contacting Kreger, or they can enter the day of the event from 12:30 p.m. to 1:15 p.m.

First prize in the garden tractor contests is $15, second is $10 and third is $5.

Questionnaires being distributed

West End Bureau
SCIOTA — Local Boy Scouts are still continuing to distribute planning and zoning questionnaires to residents and landowners in Hamilton Township.

Slate Belt S.A. drive continues

PEN ARGYL — Salvation Army officials in Pen Argyl are utilizing a letter campaign in their efforts to raise $16,000 in funds to be used in Salvation Army work in the Slate Belt area.

Capt. William W. Crawford, commanding officer of the Salvation Army in Pen Argyl, and campaign chairman Nicholas Guerro said letters were mailed by the Salvation Army to areas served by the Pen Argyl center.

The fund drive for the $16,000 began on Aug. 1 and will run through the end of September.

Funds raised by the drive will be used in the following Slate Belt communities: Portland, Slateford, Middle Village, Stone Church, Mount Bethel, Richmond, Bangor and suburbs, East Bangor, Roseto, Pen Argyl, Wind Gap, Ackermanville, Nazareth, Belfast, Stockertown, Plainfield Township, Edelman, Martins Creek, Flicksville and Meyers Crossing.

It is expected that the distribution will continue for at least another two weeks.

A final deadline for the dissemination of 2,000 polling forms was originally set for Aug. 15 and it was assumed that the Scouts would be able to complete the operation by that time.

Last week, however, the Scouts participated in a five-day camping trip to Gettysburg, Pa., and were not able to meet the early deadline.

According to Hamilton Planner William Weber, residents should not be alarmed if they have not received a questionnaire to date, because the distribution is continuing.

Anyone wishing to receive a questionnaire by mail should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elmer Kiefer, secretary of the Hamilton Township Planning Commission, Box 24, R. D. 1, Saylorsburg, Pa. 18353.

According to Weber, the Boy Scouts will also be responsible for collecting the questionnaires once they are distributed, but residents also have the option of returning their completed forms to Kiefer by mail if they wish.

Housing problem needs solution

For an area with what almost everyone agrees is a drastic housing shortage, Monroe County certainly isn't welcoming apartment complexes with open arms.

There are people, recognizing the need and the inevitable profits, who are willing to build. But, for one reason or another, there are others who aren't willing to let them.

There is a fundamental problem in locating apartment complexes in this area: the communities which most need them already are densely built up. And the problem is exacerbated by the lack of a public transportation system.

While Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg are anxious to protect what single-family residential areas they have left, the type of people most in need of housing aren't the single-family residence type. They can't make use of that property, and in any event, available land isn't extensive enough to make a dent in the housing need.

That same type of person also has a need to be located close to places of work, study or shopping. They either are elderly, poor or students.

That rules out building apartment complexes in outlying locations, because there just isn't any way to get into town. If we had a public transportation system of some sort, or even if we could supply a bus line out to a group of apartments, for example, and the twin boroughs, that problem wouldn't exist.

But we have no such facility for moving numbers of people into and out of town. We did once, when trolleys ran all the way to Delaware Water Gap, but that was years ago.

Perhaps there is the germ of a solution there. If enough firms could be interested in building complexes out of town but in the same general location, it might pay to run jitneys out and back on a regular schedule — working hours, for example, and one or two runs in the prime afternoon shopping hours.

Such a development would pose a sewage and solid waste problem, of course, but then we have to come to grips with those eventually anyway.

While that may not be the ideal solution to the housing problem, one must be sought. We can no longer close our eyes to the situation and freeze out apartments because they would alter our way of life and community's character. The people are here, more are coming, and we simply have to do something about it.

How politics works

If ever any proof was needed that it's difficult, nay impossible, to stay in politics and remain your own man, it was evident recently in the firing of Alexander J. Jaffurs, legal counsel for the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board.

Both Jaffurs and sources within the Shapp Administration said he was fired after he refused to resign.

"I just haven't been managed by the politicians," Jaffurs said. "What I think I stand for has alienated these people. I have faith in state government and I was an obstacle to the politicians from the first day I took my job."

Jaffurs has been under attack recently for his release of a memo last December claiming a number of high officials and legislators were getting free liquor from distributors.

Now he's making new charges, saying that two state representatives whom he identified as Rep. Charles Caputo, D-Allegheny; Rep. Robert E. Ballomini, D-Erie; and Sen. Frank D. Mazzei, D-Allegheny, approached the board or his office for special favors. He says he refused consistently to bend his office to meet the demands of legislators and other politicians.

Anyone who rocks the political boat in which he's riding is sure to be thrown out sooner or later. That's how the system works. Mr. Jaffurs surely must have known this when he took the job. So he cannot be overly disappointed upon his firing.

It's refreshing, however, to have such an outspoken person break into the system and kick over the traces now and then. It can remind us all of how things really work.

Mr. Jaffurs now hopes to get a job with the special prosecutor in the Watergate case where political independence appears to be an attribute rather than a hindrance. Maybe he'll work out very well there.

New chic prose

In the old melodramas you had no trouble recognizing the villain. Not only did he usually wear black and have a mustache but he was physically ugly in the bargain. Everyone knew whom to hiss.

The same is true, allowing for variations, in the fashionable New Journalism. Here for example is Mary McCarthy describing John J. Wilson, counsel for John Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman in her Watergate Diary, now running in the London Observer. Wilson is "a querulous, dropsical old party with a mean City Hall mouth and fish eyes that seem to be looking up from some horrible weedy tank."

Now this farfetched stuff is not really intended to convey to the reader anything about the real John J. Wilson. It merely plops the black hat down over his ears.

Of course Wilson's sins, one understands, are egregious: 1) he is counsel for E and H; 2) in an exchange over the scope of "national security" he showed that he knows as much constitutional law as Sam Ervin; and 3) not knowing he would be quoted, he called Sen. Daniel Inouye a "little Jap." This last must be much worse than Inouye calling witness Ehrlichman a "liar" over a live mike, since Inouye completely escapes Miss McCarthy's black-hat treatment.

But let's look at some more "fine writing." Exhibit B comes from Murray Kempton's new book "The Briar Patch," which is about the 1970 trial of 13 Black Panthers in New York City. Here, for instance, is Kempton describing the voice of one of the Panther defendants, one Michael Tabor: "It was the voice of the organ in the cathedral, a voice that made the ceiling above him seem like a vault over which angels and archangels leaned to catch the word of God arising."

Editorial research report

By RICHARD L. WORSNOP

Watch for it on the marquee of your neighborhood movie theater — Now Playing: "The Godmother." We have already been treated to "Bonnie and Clyde" and "Coffy." Both of those films implied that the woman criminal was an exotic exception to the rule.

But that rule, like so many others concerning woman's place in society, no longer applies. Women are engaging in criminal activity more than ever before — and they are good at it.

In Washington, D. C., for example, elderly women play a key role in the local numbers racket. D. C. police last year raided the apartment of an 82-year-old woman and found evidence she had been taking numbers bets totaling between $80 and $100 a day. But she was neither charged nor prosecuted. "She was just a nice-looking old lady," a government prosecutor said. "If you saw her standing at the curb you would . . . help her cross the street."

Hardly charming

Unfortunately, though, your typical female criminal is not a charming little old lady like Josephine Hull in "Arsenic and Old Lace." She is more likely to belong to an all-girl teenage gang. Or to a stable of prostitutes like those who mugged former West German defense minister Franz Joseph Strauss in New York and splashed ad on the neck of cartoonist Charles Addams.

Crime by women under age 18, as reflected in FBI arrest statistics, is rising at an alarming rate. From 1960 through 1972, the number of men under age 18 arrested for major offenses increased by 81.6 per cent. In the same period, the number of major-offense arrests of women in that age group rose by 306.1 per cent. And so it went for lesser offenses. In 1960, only 230 American women under age 18 were arrested for narcotics law violations. By 1972 the number had increased to 10,702 — a rise of 4,553 per cent.

James A. Brussel, a former assistant commissioner of mental hygiene for the state of New York, finds nothing surprising about the upsurge in female criminality. "It's nonsense to think that there is something basically or

If you like that sort of writing, you would have adored the novels of Aphra Behn and you would have been first in line to buy the poems of Ossian. Yet Kempton is much admired as a prose stylist by the chic intelligentsia, and "The Briar Patch" will, you can bet on it, be a huge pop-cult hit.

Place beside the McCarthy and Kempton mush the aesthetic striven for by the young Hemingway, and, after long labor, achieved in his work: "I found the greatest difficulty, aside from knowing truly what you really felt, and had been taught to feel, was to put down what really happened in action . . . the real thing, the sequence of motion and fact which made the emotion and would be as valid in a year or 10 years or, with luck, and if you stated it purely enough, always."

And now the Nixons

Exhibit C, department of literary corruption. In the prose of writers like Norman Mailer and Garry Wills, taste, such as it is, obliterates fact and moral judgment.

Wills, for example, disapproves aesthetically of the Mission Inn, where Pat and Richard Nixon were married. "It is a pseudoclassical Wuthering Heights, mainly mission but also pagoda and castle. The St. Francis chapel, where big weddings are held, has an 18th-century Spanish altar and four big Tiffany windows . . . The serious young man, son of a Quaker saint, docilely lines up at the marriage mart, where all the gooiest extras — orange blossoms, 'O Promise Me,' illusion veils — cover the emptiness of the transactions."

So the wedding was meaningless, an empty transaction, because the Mission Inn displeases the writer aesthetically. Could intellectual corruption be more gross?

innately non-violent about women," he says. "No biological factors, no hormones are involved. Until recently, the only thing that held women back was the cultural influence. Now there is a sharing of everything — including crime."

On other side, too

The sharing extends to combating crime. A few years ago, women members of the nation's local police forces were confined largely to clerical duties. Then, tentatively, a handful were assigned to the traffic division. But now a number of police departments in major cities are assigning women to foot patrols. In almost every instance, their male supervisors have been surprised and gratified by the results.

Even diehard malechauvinist policemen concede that policewomen are highly effective in dealing with domestic squabbles. Moreover, male suspects apprehended on the street often seem abashed and apologetic when the arresting officer is a woman. And policewomen trained in judo have shown that they can more than hold their own when confronted by a combative male.

It is too early, however, to jump to long-range conclusions. As time passes, prosecutors and judges may treat the little-old-lady numbers writer as harshly as her young male counterpart. The semi-gallantry accorded policewomen seems sure to fade or disappear. But isn't that when sexual equality is all about?

Letters to the Editor

Message to the board

Editor, The Record:

Open letter to the board of supervisors, Upper Mount Bethel Township, Northampton County, and the voters in the Bangor Area School District.

After attending the August 14th meeting of the board, where hundreds of persons expressed a 99 per cent-plus opinion against the board's approval to build a condominium in the township, I would like to summarize as follows:

(1) Assuming that the dedicated men who make up the board acted in accordance with the current laws, I trust that they will take all necessary steps in order to correct their approval to confirm with the wishes of those they represent.

(2) In order to avoid further similar conflicts, a majority of those present at the meeting have already demanded a zoning ordinance. Thus, the board should draft and present such ordinance without further discussion at a special meeting without further delay.

(3) The other local governments in the Bangor Area School District should take this lesson at heart: Their residents also are 99 per cent-plus against apartment complexes, overburdening of public services and overcrowding of schools, as well as means of transportation. They also must propose zoning ordinances, if not already existing, to be approved at the next meeting.

(4) All voters in the Bangor Area School District should take this lesson at heart: Attend the meetings of your local government and if you cannot go, ask your wife or your oldest son-daughter to go. The latter will have to live under the conditions that are created now.

Still doesn't want landfill

Editor, The Record:

I read your editorial in a recent paper on the editorial page about "Landfill Not Filthy Ogre."

Well, let me tell you one thing: We in the West End do not want our land full of scrap from the East End. How many people does the Stroudsburg area employ from the West End? I know of only one person who is concerned about people from the West End, Dr. Floyd Shafer.

We don't care if it's an open dump or not. We don't want to have the Stroudsburg's junk in our backyard, or have them laugh at us. We still don't want to have the landfill here in our backyard. So keep it up there to yourselves and feed your own rats.

Protests school taxes for elderly

Editor, The Record:

It has come to my attention that school tax bills have been received this past week by guests of a nursing home in Stroudsburg.

This to me is contemptible! These people, all in their 70s and 80s, have had long and useful lives, have lived respectfully and have paid all their bills, including thousands of dollars in taxes.

They now are on Social Security as their only income. This is not enough to pay their room and board at the home, let alone the doctor bills, prescription drugs, clothing, shoes and toilet articles necessary for their needs. The balance has to come from dwindling savings or from their families, if any. Some are all alone in the world.

Has the Stroudsburg School District sunk

so low financially that it must have its "pound of flesh" from these citizens, who are already having trouble keeping pace with inflation and still maintain their dignity?

If so, it appears as if we need new management in the Stroudsburg School District.

RAY RAUSCH

Pocono Summit

EDITOR'S NOTE: The school district sends out a bill for its occupation tax ($10 in the category you refer to) and a $10 per capita tax. But there is an exoneration committee that evaluates the financial situation of people such as you mention and, if warranted, the individual may be exonerated from paying the taxes. Only that committee can exonerate anyone from taxes.

Reaping grain harvest

WASHINGTON — A handful of giant grain companies reaped $333 million in federal subsidy payments at the same time that they were making windfall profits from sales in the Russian wheat deal.

The massive sales profits grabbed off by the wheat barons have already been documented; the traders bought cheap on the basis of private information, then sold dear when the magnitude of the deal drained wheat supplies. Their shenanigans helped drive up the prices of meat, dairy and bakery goods.

Now, the Senate Investigations Subcommittee under Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., has documented how the grain merchants chiseled the taxpayers through subsidies.

A secret staff memo meant for Jackson's eyes only asserts that "the export subsidy program cost American taxpayers $333 million in agricultural subsidies in connection with the Russian grain deal." Much of the gouging was accomplished through dubious paper transactions.

Under the expert subsidy system, the government pays the U. S. seller the difference between the high price he could get in the U. S. market and the lower price he would get from the foreign buyer.

For example, if the seller could get $3 a bushel in the United States, but only $2.75 in Europe, the government pays the U. S. seller 25 cents a bushel. The government promotes such deals to improve our balance of trade and bolster the dollar.

Subsidies soared

At the time of the Russian wheat deal late last summer, subsidies had soared to 47 cents a bushel — the difference between the U. S. price of $2.10 and the foreign price of $1.63. The Jackson memo details how the grain companies used this situation to collect massive amounts in subsidies by clever manipulation.

"For example, we have information that one company (Cargill) sold wheat to its wholly-owned South American affiliate (Tradex-Panama). The company collected the subsidy when it showed proof of shipment to its affiliate.

"The affiliate then sold the wheat to another affiliate in Geneva which thereupon made a final sale for $2.20 (a bushel) or 10 cents above the American price."

In other words, Cargill sold wheat to its affiliate in order to cash in on the high subsidy. Then Cargill made a profit when its affiliate sold the wheat. The profit was recorded by the foreign affiliate, and sheltered from U. S. taxes.

"As far as we can tell," Jackson's investigators marveled, "the wheat never left the ship on which it was originally loaded, and all transfers were mere paper transfers."

"This practice was repeated numerous times as (The Department of Agriculture) blindly maintained unnecessary subsidies which pushed up the price of wheat and ultimately the retail cost of food to the American taxpayer."

Footnote: A Cargill spokesman conceded to our associate Jack Cloherty that transactions with affiliates occurred, and that subsidies were collected. He defended the system as necessary for the United States to compete on the world market. He denied that Cargill had profited.

Spooky Censors — So far, the Central Intelligence Agency has successfully blocked publication of a CIA expose by ex-agent Victor Marchetti. Now, State Department censors are trying to get a copy of the manuscript from its co-author, John Marks, formerly a State Department employee.

Among the manuscript's secrets: the CIA ordered an informal boycott of a Chinese restaurant in Washington because "Jack Anderson is one of its owners." (In fact, I have a small interest in a Chinese restaurant.)

The book also discloses CIA "spooks" in Chile and CIA misuse of funds.

Watergate Music — Seattle's KIRO radio has banned a humorous record called "Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and Dean" by a group called "The Creep."

The ban was ordered after calls were received by the station attacking John Ehrlichman, who has just resettled in Seattle with his family.

The station explained to us it feared the record ("Just when we were getting to be well-to-do, the Watergate turned into our Waterloo") might stimulate assaults on the former White House aide's family or prejudice action by local lawyers to disbar him.

Typewriter Crusader — The taxpayers of College Park, Georgia, have been rendering unto Billy Graham that which is the College Park High School's.

Despite the separation of church and state, the school shipped off 25 of its typewriters to Atlanta for temporary use in Graham's crusade. School principal Joseph Bostardi explained it was "a valuable community service" which he would gladly repeat.

Belli to Hanoi? — Famed lawyer Melvin Belli tells us he will fly to Hanoi to get copies of all POW prison records if the U. S. court martial his ex-POW client, Marine Lt. Col. Edison Miller. Miller is charged by another POW, Navy Rear Adm. James Stockdale, with cooperating with the communists.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Litter

"Litter," a word which we use to denote a state of untidiness, originally meant bed.

The word comes from the Latin "lectus," which became "litiere" in Old French, "litiere" in Anglo-French and "litter" in English.

A few centuries ago, many beds consisted of nothing more than a pile of straw, therefore the name "litter" was applied to this material.

Straw and other odd bits of material were used to making plaster, so "litter" acquired, by stages, the meanings of "odds and ends," "rubbish," and finally "a state of untidiness," which is generally the case where rubbish accumulates.

Aerosol adhesive banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three types of aerosol spray adhesives were banned as "hazardous" Monday by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Richard O. Simpson, chairman of the commission, said a University of Oklahoma study indicated that exposure to the adhesives, widely used by artists and photographers, could cause chromosome damage and result in severe birth defects.

"We have sufficient evidence to officially declare brand names 'Soil Art Spray Adhesives,' 'Scotch Brand Spray Adhesive' and 'Krylon Spray Adhesive' banned hazardous products," Simpson said.

"We are asking manufacturers of all other aerosol spray adhesives to voluntarily discontinue production and distribution of their goods. And we expect that retailers will act immediately to halt sales of such products."

Simpson said manufacturers of the products, 3-M Corp. and Borden Co., had voluntarily stopped production and distribution of the adhesives.

Cars recalled

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. Monday announced the recall of 14,692 1973 Torinos and Rancheros for a possible faulty pinch-bolt causing eventual loss of steering control.

Ford said some of the bolts on the power steering gear input shaft were insufficiently tightened during assembly. They said laboratory tests disclosed that loosening of the bolt after extended vehicle use could cause eventual loss of steering control.

Deeder, 41, an assistant shift foreman, and another miner, identified today as Terry Udall, 24, of Colorado, run the other direction, toward the back of the tunnel.

Udall's identity had been withheld temporarily because relatives could not be located.

Handy investing tips help schools save $23 million

HARRISBURG (UPI) — A state program that shows local school boards how to invest unused tax money helped Pennsylvania's public schools earn $23 million last year.

The man who runs the program is Milt Lopus, a consultant for the state Department of Education. He is a former Bradford city manager.

"We've been meeting with local officials in workshops and seminars all over the state trying to show them good investment practices," Lopus said.

The $23 million figure for the last school year is a $7 million increase over school investment earnings for 1971-72.

"This isn't a situation where they are free and loose with money," Lopus said. "All of these investments are federally secured, either bank certificates or savings accounts."

School boards can invest because most of their tax money comes into the treasury in the fall. Some of it may not be needed until nine months later, so they make short-term investments.

"There's three main reasons why school boards have increased earnings," Lopus said.

"First, some of the local business managers have come up with very innovative programs. The interest rates on investments are better."

"The third would be the efforts of the Education Department in offering technical assistance and speeding the flow of funds."

Lopus said 98.4 per cent of the 505 districts that invested money last year made earnings.

Only 15 districts earned less than $1,000 during the past school year, compared with 90 in 1971-72.

"In 1971-72, a lot of districts made investments here and there, but they had no investment program," Lopus said.

Lopus also devised a program that speeds the flow of some $1 billion a year in state aid to local districts.

Under the old system, the state checks were sent by mail, so that school districts lost as much as five days before they could deposit the money—and the money could earn interest.

The state first used a "Pony Express", sending state employees out to hand deliver the checks to school districts.

Fresh rescue crews work to free trapped miners

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — Fresh rescue crews were called in Monday to push through a clogged, smoking tunnel in a desperate effort to reach two copper miners trapped since Friday.

The two men have not been heard from since a cave-in of mud, accumulated drill muck cascaded down a vertical shaft and trapped them off in a dead-end tunnel in the Hecla Mining Company's Lakeshore development 35 miles south of here.

Mine officials said they still were optimistic the two men were still alive and continued to pump fresh air and water alternately through a two-inch drain pipe which passes under the blockage into the sealed section.

The 10-man rescue teams, totaling more than 50 miners, were using portable bulkheads in an attempt to reach the pile of loose gravel and rock Monday, but still were hampered by a smoldering fire in the tunnel's support timbers.

Each time one of the bulkheads is moved forward, the area behind it must be cleared of smoke and fumes. Then the rear bulkhead is moved ahead and the process repeated. The crews can work only about 20 to 30 minutes at a time before their oxygen supplies run out.

Verne McCutchan, State Mine Inspector, who has been on the scene since shortly after the cave-in, said the rescue crews have several times made good progress into the tunnel, only to be driven back by heavy smoke and heat.

Relief crews were being recruited from other mines in the state to speed up the assault on the smoldering fire, he said.

McCutchan said it would be impossible to remove the huge pile of material blocking the tunnel until the fire is extinguished.

The tunnel is 1200 feet under the surface. The vertical shaft was being drilled upwards from the tunnel toward the surface at the time of the cave-in.

A loader operator, Edward Hazelhurst, and other miners ran towards the mouth of the tunnel when the cave-in started.

Hazelhurst said he saw David

Apartment building fire kills 4

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Four persons, including a baby, were killed early Monday in a fire that swept through a downtown apartment building and forced a number of persons to jump from windows.

The dead were Andrew Elekanasi, 30, his wife, Caroline, 22, their seven-month-old daughter, also named Caroline, and Constance Colameco, 65.

The fire marshal's office said seven or eight persons among the 17 living in the four-story building at 1714 Spring Garden St. jumped out of windows to escape the flames. A total of five persons were reported injured during the blaze.

One report said Mrs. Elekanasi leaped from a second floor window with her daughter in her arms but police and fire officials said they had no knowledge of this.

One woman, a Mary Anne Janaitis, fashioned a rope out of bed sheets to allow her four children ranging in age from 10 to five months old to escape.

By that time, firemen had arrived and rescued the woman by use of a ladder.

Elizabeth McCluskey weds

STROUDSBURG — Miss Elizabeth Jo McCluskey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Joseph McCluskey of 789 Bryant Street, Stroudsburg, became the bride of John Jay Albertson III on Saturday, Aug. 18 at 2 p.m. in St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Albertson, Jr., of R. D. 2, Stroudsburg.

Rev. Francis Barrett performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladiolus, blue carnations and white pompons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white silk organza with an empire waist and a sheer neckline accented with Venice lace. The attached chapel length train was edged in applied lace. A Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls held her three-tiered finger tip veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses, blue miniature carnations, baby's breath and cascading ivy trimmed with blue and white satin streamers.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Jane McCluskey of Stroudsburg, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Kristen Trogner, cousin of the bride, of Freeport, Grand Bahama Island; Miss Carol Ann Denz of Stroudsburg; and Miss Amy McCluskey of Stroudsburg, also sister of the bride. Junior bridesmaid was Lynn Ellen Blair, cousin of the bride of Matawan, N. J.

The attendants were dressed in pale blue dotted Swiss gowns with long sheer sleeves. The brides and bridesmaids were outlined in matching white lace. They carried colonial bouquets of white sweetheart roses, blue miniature carnations, baby's breath and blue and white streamers. The junior bridesmaid's gown was of white dotted Swiss trimmed with lace intertwined with pale blue satin ribbon. She carried an identical colonial bouquet.

Scott Albertson served as his brother's best man. The ushers were John Metzgar of

Mrs. John J. Albertson III
(Arnold Studio)

Snydersville; Joseph McCluskey, Jr., brother of the bride of Stroudsburg; and David Albertson, brother of the bridegroom, also of Stroudsburg.

The mother of the bride was attired in a gown of crystal blue chiffon. The mother of the bridegroom wore a gown of aqua matte jersey with lace bodice and matching chanel jacket piped with satin.

The grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. George Jones of Lumberton, N. J., wore a floor-length gown of pink polyester knit accented with a ruffled neckline and cuffs.

The mothers and grandmother were presented with corsages of white sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Misses Ann and Denise Turner, cousins of the bridegroom of Lumberton, N. J., attended the guest book and were presented with corsages of white carnations and baby's breath.

A reception was held at the Elks Club, East Stroudsburg, for 130 guests. Music was provided by the Tommy Cullen Orchestra.

A rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents at the Knights of Columbus Home in Stroudsburg.

The bride, a 1972 graduate of Stroudsburg High School, also attended Sacred Heart Hospital School of Nursing and is presently employed by the Security Bank and Trust Company in Stroudsburg.

The bridegroom, a 1969 graduate of Stroudsburg High School and a 1973 graduate of the Pennsylvania State University with a bachelor's degree in Business Administration, is employed as a department manager for Hess's Department Store in Palmer Township.

To organize new chapter of Deborah

STROUDSBURG — A meeting to organize a local chapter of Deborah will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Katz, Dreher Ave., Stroudsburg.

Deborah Heart and Lung Center, located in New Jersey, is a unique treatment center in that all of its patients, regardless of their financial status, must be sponsored by a chapter of Deborah.

The purpose of organizing a local chapter is to make it easier for people of Stroudsburg and the surrounding area who need the services of the center to be admitted.

Regional director of Deborah, Gertrude Donati of Philadelphia, will be present for the meeting to explain the workings of the center and the features which make it unique.

Anyone interested in further details of the meeting may call Mrs. Martin Smyth, 595-2807.

Appenzell resident

Taking the long road back

SCRANTON — It was the last day of his vacation and it was also Christmas Eve. Lester Anglemire, an Appenzell resident, was trying to complete a few projects he had planned during his time off. One of them was to install a TV antenna for his mother.

As he was putting the finishing touches to the job — something that would add to his Mom's Christmas celebration — he suddenly discovered that he couldn't pick up the pliers. With his typical happy outlook toward life, Lester assumed that the situation would clear up. However, within 24 hours, he realized that he was experiencing near-total paralysis.

After undergoing tests at General Hospital of Monroe County, his doctor diagnosed his problem as Guillain-Barre syndrome, a not-too-common disease which is thought to result from a viral infection of the nervous system.

Following a ten-week period of treatment at Allentown General Hospital, arrangements were made for Anglemire to be admitted to Allied Services for the Handicapped, Scranton, the largest comprehensive rehabilitation complex in the eastern United States.

After a complete evaluation by Allied's medical staff, a schedule of therapy was mapped out involving the staff of the physical and occupational therapy departments. For some time Lester was only able to move his head and shrug his shoulders.

Lester's family is a large and closely-knit one. So it was no surprise that his brother-in-law, Gene Bender, devised a call bell for Lester which he could activate with his elbow when he needed nursing care.

After continuous daily therapy, Lester was finally able to sit in a wheelchair — quite an accomplishment for one who lost complete control over all his muscles! He also learned how to transfer himself with the aid of a board to any other flat surface, such as a bed.

His occupational therapist recently designed a spiral plastic aid which supports Lester's wrists and enables him to begin feeding himself, picking up objects and performing the myriad tasks involved in day-to-day living which are too often taken for granted.

What enables a man, who has always enjoyed good health, worked hard and steadily all his adult years and without any warning at all finds himself nearly totally paralyzed, to maintain such a healthy attitude?

Halfway home?

First of all, credit must be given to Lester's easy-going personality and his religious spirit. Secondly, Lester's own family, plus other relatives and friends edified the staff by their devotion to him and the constant encouragement they give every achievement he has made.

His wife, the former Lila Smith, together with his daughter, Lesley, 14, and 21-year-old son, Craig, recently discharged from military service, continued the strong family spirit which lessens the disappointments and doubles the joy which are intrinsic in any tragedy.

A third factor in Anglemire's recovery is the spirit of Allied's staff. Mr. and Mrs. Anglemire observed their 25th wedding anniversary on July 17. The entire family was invited to spend the day with Lester and to meet his therapists and other staff members who would ordinarily not be around during evening visiting hours.

The nurses, in a much-appreciated surprise gesture, presented Mrs. Anglemire with an orchid corsage which she proudly wore when all the Anglemires enjoyed dinner together at a local restaurant.

At that time, Mrs. Anglemire, with her typically open, sincere manner, said, "We wouldn't trade the last 25 years for all the riches in the world, and are looking forward to the next 25 together, God willing."

She also adds, "Lester was stricken seven months ago, but with the kindness and prayers of our families, friends and neighbors, our burdens have been lessened."

And with the teamwork of Allied's staff and Lester's cooperation and determination, he will return to the town he loves and resume his job at Paper Corporation of America, a company which employed him for 18 years.

Everyone is hoping for Lester Anglemire and his family that Christmas, 1973 will be one of joy, celebration and festivities. Allied's staff is working hard to make that hope a reality.

Fine frozen food

Need for blanching

By JOYCE A. KLINE
Asst. Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — Garden fresh vegetables and fruits are a mid-summer delight. And properly frozen products will give your family a taste of the summer sun all winter long. Freezing is an easy way to preserve most fruits and vegetables. For the best quality frozen foods, you need to prepare the vegetables properly. Blanching vegetables is necessary for optimal quality.

Blanching vegetables before freezing is easy and takes very little extra time. Practically every vegetable should be blanched to slow the action of enzymes and preserve the fresh quality color and vitamin content. It also helps keep the vegetables longer. Without blanching, vegetables will develop off-flavors, discolor or toughen so they may be unappetizing after a few weeks in your freezer.

Use plenty of water for blanching — a gallon for each pound of prepared vegetables. Use a large kettle and bring the water to a full rolling boil. Put the vegetables, already washed, sorted and peeled — if necessary — in a wire basket or loose cheesecloth bag and lower them completely under the boiling water.

Careful timing is essential. Start counting blanching time as soon as you put the vegetables in the water. If you wait to start timing until the water starts boiling again, the vegetables will be cooked too long. Keep the kettle covered during blanching and keep the heat up high.

As soon as you've blanched the vegetables the required amount of time, cool them in ice water or cool running water. If you use ice, you'll need about one pound of ice for each pound of vegetable. It will probably take as long for cooling as it did for blanching. But check your cookbook or freezing manual for exact directions on blanching and cooling.

Remember to start with top quality produce — mature but not over-ripe or green. Freeze the vegetables as soon as possible after harvesting, preferably the same day. And work with a quantity you can easily handle at one time.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

I wonder how long you have to go around with wet shoes before jungle rot sets in? This would be the week that the grandchildren are staying at the river with thunderstorms and drizzle, muddy river and river mud, puddles and paddies adding to the confusion.

The children don't mind — except when they discover that the bathing suit they have to put on is still very wet and very cold — but it does complicate the housekeeping chores with nothing — not the floor, towels, sneakers, long hair or children — getting really dry.

One reason they don't mind is that the river is sort of a comic strip come to life as far as recreating the little people wandering in and out of the Dagwood Bumstead household is concerned.

Of course there are the children they've known from other summers, with an interesting re-alignment of friendships. Last year's toddlers tagging along after the muddlers; last year's tag-alongs accepted as part of the group; the last year's muddlers this year's much more superior going-on-teens.

But then out of nowhere come new little people you've never seen before, joining the end of the cookie line or the line to the bathroom.

Somewhat I get the feeling that if children could plan the world they want, this would be it with adults relegated to the role of providers of food, band-aids, and comparatively dry clothes. Except, of course, at bedtime when a lap and a little loving can be a comfort.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Some pressure in job matters indicated. Don't try to force your opinions. Listen and learn. Superiors will be impressed.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Avoid risks and impulsiveness. Make no hasty decisions and curb spending. Be especially careful to analyze your budget if making travel plans.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Good chances now of meeting new and interesting people. In fact, talk with one who is unusually sophisticated may broaden your horizons considerably.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Keep arrangements flexible. Some unexpected changes possible. On the personal side, a business associate may show a romantic interest in you.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Greater recognition for your efforts indicated. Shake off a current tendency toward self-doubt. Don't forget: You are a born leader. Prove it!

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — An average day, but give some thought to future ventures. The p.m. hours will be excellent for following up on new contacts.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You may have to strive against time and the obstinacy or misunderstanding of others. Rewards indicated for past efforts, but don't underestimate the opposition.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Some changing conditions. Do not be dismayed. Accept them with your inherent adaptability and sense of humor.

November 23 to December

21 (Sagittarius) — As with Libra and Scorpio, you may face some petty annoyances. Shake these off with a philosophical attitude and settle down to serious work. Much can be accomplished now.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Excitement and (or) anxiety could be detrimental to top achievement. Be contained. Direct energies constructively. Familiarize yourself with new trends.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Especially favored now: occupational pursuits, social functions, charity interests and general personal relationships. Avoid daydreaming, excesses.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Some projects must be backed more carefully, some methods changed. But nothing should be done on the spur of the moment, or with antagonism, as feelings may run high now.

YOU BORN TODAY are a tower of strength and solidarity, versatile in your talents and interests and, while as gifted in leadership as other Leotes, tend to make enemies through your tendency to be overly critical of associates. Try to curb this trait; also inclinations to domineer and to act impulsively. There are many fields in which you could succeed but, notably, as a writer, painter, musician, merchandiser or as a leader in any branch of the armed forces. Your personal life is characterized by extremes, and you will be either the high-minded idealist or the disillusioned materialist.

Contract Bridge

B. Jay Becker

Card reading

North dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K Q 7 4
♥ K J
♦ 9 6 4 3
♣ A K 7

A few plays later, South ruffs the six of diamonds, felling the queen and making the nine a trick. As a result, declarer loses only a heart and two diamonds and makes the contract.

The villain of the piece is East, who should not play the ace of diamonds at trick two. He should return a low diamond instead, and, if he does, South goes down one.

Once declarer follows with the five at trick one, East can diagnose West's diamond lead as one of these two holdings: 1. a singleton; 2. precisely the Q-10-2. A low diamond return covers both possibilities and is therefore correct.

It is impossible for West to have started with four diamonds, for he would have led the queen from the Q-J-10-2. In the same way, West cannot have J-10-2, since he would have led the jack in that case. The low diamond return is therefore clearly best, as South cannot have the doubleton queen.

The number of hands where card reading of this type is possible is quite enormous. To be a good card detective one must be willing and able to stop and figure things out. Bridge is not for the lazy mind.

The bidding:

West North East South

Pass 1 NT Pass 4 ♠

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

Cards tell a story, but it is sometimes difficult to read the story. Take this case where it would be easy to go wrong. West does not have an automatic lead and, let's say, leads the diamond deuce.

East takes the king and continues with the ace, South contributing the jack and West the ten. Too late East realizes that partner led from the Q-10-2 and shifts to a club, but the damage is already done.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK - Any woman who expects a diamond from Omar Sharif is apt to be doubled in spades—If Omar were caught in a storm at sea, you can bet he'd be playing bridge over troubled waters. The Egyptian actor has been heard to say "I'd rather be a bad actor than a bad bridge player" - So we asked how he developed his interest in the game into a championship style.

"Lawrence of Arabia" is responsible for my becoming a dedicated bridge player," Omar told us. "My role in that film led me to take up playing bridge seriously. Working as a movie actor requires hours of waiting for each minute you actually appear before the camera. Since the interiors in the film were shot in London, I had the opportunity of meeting Boris Schapiro, who is on everyone's list of the great bridge players of all time. I was fascinated by bridge as I watched it played by really good players.

"I found bridge a challenge - almost an academic exercise, more relaxing than any other pastimes I had previously found which were practical ways to pass the hours on a movie set. Now my first loves are breeding horses and playing tournament bridge. My friends claim I really act in pictures as a way of being able to afford the capital and time for the bridge games and horses.

"I don't believe winning a movie award could be as exciting to me as my winning the recent Ladbroke Club world masters individual tournament. Howard Schenken and Boris Schapiro were the betting favorites. I was listed by the bookies as 3rd favorite at 8-1. I had the supreme confidence to wager 50 pounds (125 dollars) on myself at that price. When it came up to the final session at the Ladbroke Club, I was 33 to 1. My confidence then is reflected in that I didn't take those giveaway odds. I know that while bridge is usually 90 per cent skill and 10 per cent luck, in a tournament like the world's individual masters, luck plays the far more important role.

Boris and I have teamed up to play in a number of tournaments next season, including the London Sunday Times Contest which is the World Series of bridge. I believe that playing in these tournaments will help my movie acting. My tensions will come at the tables rather than on the set. The producers of my film, "The Tamarind Seed," weren't happy by my winning the Ladbroke - your bridge playing got all the headlines rather than our picture" was their complaint. The film was in production in London at that time.

"Bridge has as do most card games a long and interesting history. It is a variation of the many - hundred - year - old 'whist,' originally called 'whisk.' According to gambling historian Alan Wykes, it came to us from Russia where it originated in the early 1800's as 'iritsch' - so you see Boris and his ancestors had a headstart at it.

"Trump was decided by the dealer instead of by chance as in whist. Trump incidentally, is a corruption of the word 'triumph.' The dealer's partner became the dummy who had to expose his hand after the first trick had been made. There was for the first time a point system which allowed increasing the stakes many times. Bridge came to Western Europe, according to one account which I prefer, by way of Turkey. The Russian Ambassador there sent a letter to the Czar saying that his only relaxation for 15 days had been 'biritsch' which he lost at every day. He is not the only one. At least historically, Boris and I should be a great combination. So the Russians didn't invent baseball, but they did bridge which took almost 100 years to get to the West. New York can claim credit for first auction and then contract bridge. The French did have their own version called 'plafond.'

"My father is making ridiculous demands these days. Can you imagine any teenager limiting a phone call to THREE minutes?!"

Ann Landers

Enticing widow

Dear Ann Landers: I am in charge of maintenance for a large luxury apartment building in this city. The problem is a well-heeled widow in her early 60s. We have a record of her "requests" for service and last month she called 42 times. This month her requests will exceed that number.

She asks for someone to come up and move a piece of furniture, replace a light bulb, repair a leaky faucet, check the intercom system, "do something" about her TV reception, "do something" about her noisy refrigerator, "do something" about the draft from the windows, etc.

When the men go up there they have a devil of a time getting out. She always has the table set for two and asks them to sit down for coffee and a sweet. Yesterday she invited the window washer to stay for lunch.

This morning the electrician told me he is sure she disconnects and unscrews things so she can call somebody to come and fix it. What can be done about her? She's a non-stop talker and nobody wants to go up there.

—Big J.

Dear J.: The poor lady is lonely but is not up to the building to supply companionship for widows.

Tell her she is entitled to X number of service calls a month and after that she will have to hire outside help.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 18-year-old daughter is in love with a boy whose past reads like a nightmare. Broken home, stealing, reform school, drugs and alcohol. She was a fine girl until she met this boy, but for the past two years her life has consisted of lies, evasions, crying and nerves.

Now that she is through high school I wonder if we should stop fighting this thing and let her go with him. She has continued to see him on the sneak and we know it. We can't discuss it anymore. If the subject is brought up she says, "It's my life and no one can tell me how to live it." She is an intelligent girl and has plans for college. His future is very unpromising. He couldn't get into any college even if he wanted to, which he doesn't.

There is no end to the heartache caused by her mad passion for this boy. Her brothers, both older, have tried to talk to her. Her friends have tried to make her see the problems she will face if she continues to go with him. Nothing seems to help. Seeking professional help is not the answer. We tried that, too. Should we give up and let her go with him freely so that the forbidden does not seem so magical?

—Another sad Mother

Dear Mother: A girl 18 is old enough to pick her own friends. My guess is that when you stop attacking her selection she will no longer need to defend it. This is often the case with girls who take up with undesirable company. She'll probably drop him when she feels she can do so of her own volition and not because YOU want her to.

Annie Old Kid: Here we go again. I refer to your nutty views on guns. I have hunted since I was 12. I have never shot a gun carelessly or caused an animal to suffer. Some of the beef you eat was the result of a smack between the eyes with a sledge hammer, or a knife through the jugular.

Give us hunters equal time. Don't take our guns away.

—Michigan.

Dear Mich: Relax, Sport. I don't want your hunting guns. I'm after the Saturday night specials — the handguns that are killing thousands of innocent people. Those are the murder weapons I'd like to see melted into scrap iron.

Dance disaster

By Jean Adams

DANCE DISASTER: (Q). Ellen is just about the MOST girl I ever knew. She is popular, has a shape, and also has a lot of whatever it is that makes boys drool.

I am not popular. One day I was raving about Ellen and my friend bet me $5 I couldn't get a date for the Friday night dance with her. I must have been really way out. I took him up, even though I had never had a date with any girl before. She said yes.

But it was a disaster plus. I stepped on her foot so hard once that her shoe came off. At refreshment time I tried to pour her a glass of grape drink. I was shaking so much I poured half a pitcher down the front of her yellow dress.

She cried. I took her home crying. She didn't say thanks or go away or anything. She just walked inside crying.

I have not had the courage to call her again. Should I? I like her more than I did before and want another chance. Or do I even have a right to call her?

—Conn. Clown.

(A). Yes. You owe her an apology in the cool light of later time. She may also feel that she owes you an apology for not being a sport about it.

If she and you are able to see the humor in your learning effort and go on from there, your friendship may grow and bloom. If she can't forgive you, you will have done what you can, and you will have learned.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each letter personally. Mail your questions or comments to Jean Adams, care of The Pocono Record, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77004.)

For the Record

EAST STROUDSBURG — Robert M. Allen, chairman of the Pocono Mountains Junior Miss Pageant, sponsored by the Pocono Mountains Jaycees Saturday night, said the state pageant will be held Thanksgiving week in Reading, not Hershey as appeared in Monday's paper.

Also appearing incorrectly in Monday's Record was the listing of the first and second runners-up.

Miss Jacqueline Budicker was first runner-up, not second as reported. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Budicker of East Stroudsburg. She also won the poise and appearance competition.

Sharon Lessig, also from East Stroudsburg and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lessig, was the second runner-up. She won the top award in the physical fitness category.

Another error which appeared in the story was the spelling of the name of "Miss Congeniality" Kathleen Ratti, of Kunkletown.

Allen and his wife will accompany the new Junior Miss Marjilou Ackerman to the state pageant. Joseph Pula was co-chairman of the seventh annual event.

Courses available for retirees

BETHLEHEM — The Late-Start program at Northampton County Area Community College (NCACC) will begin its fall session September 24 and conclude December 6.

Designed to prepare retirees for productive living in their communities, the ten-week session will meet Monday, Tuesday and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Transportation to the NCACC campus and lunch is provided. The program is limited to those 60 and over. There is no tuition or fees for those who qualify.

Late-Start programs for the fall include nutrition, social security benefits, hospital services, housing and arts and crafts.

Field trips like last year's visit to a circus in Philadelphia and the Allentown Art Museum are part of the program designed to meet the continuing educational, cultural and social needs of those over 60.

A descriptive brochure is available to anyone interested by calling the NCAAC Office of Continuing Education at 865-5351, ext. 346.

Health tests scheduled

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg State Health Center will conduct a free multi-phasic screening program at its office, 519 Sarah St., from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The program is available to all residents of Monroe County over 25 years of age, and will be conducted throughout the day by a team of health professionals.

During the screening, tests will be administered for anemia, diabetes, obesity, cholesterol and hypertension. In addition, basic dental and nutritional surveys will be conducted with each participant.

A free personal appointment can be scheduled by calling the State Health Center.

Area residents spend more

Monroe - high mart rating

Special to the Record
STROUDSBURG — On the strength of its business activity during the past year, Monroe County is given a high rating in a nationwide economic survey.

The study shows that it was an above-average retail market. Local residents earned more and spent more, per family, than people in most areas of the country.

The facts and figures are brought out in a new "Survey of Buying Power," conducted and copyrighted by Sales Management, the marketing publication. It gives comparable data for every county in the United States.

In Monroe County, it is shown, there was an upswing in business due to stronger consumer buying. It produced a sales volume in local retail stores of $149,697,000, a rise over the previous year's $101,356,000.

In terms of population alone, this was more than average. Figured on that basis, local retail business should have amounted to only .0233 per cent of the national, since that proportion of the total population lives in the area.

It went above that quota, however, and accounted for .0337 per cent of the national volume.

Consumer spending in the year for goods and services increased considerably from the previous year, despite public resentment over higher prices.

Among many people, the steadily rising costs, with no end in sight, has led them to purchase new cars, washing machines, television sets and other expensive items before prices go up still further. Better incomes made it possible for them to do so.

Net earnings of Monroe County residents, after payment of taxes, came to $175,519,000, topping the previous year's $161,085,000.

It was equivalent to a median net cash income of $8,047 per household, with half of the families earning more than this and half less.

The relative standing of one community to another, in terms of purchasing power and business vitality, is shown through an "index of sales activity."

Monroe County is given an index rating of 145, or 45 per cent above the national average.

Disaster loan application deadline set

PHILADELPHIA — The Small Business Administration announced Monday deadlines for filling applications for disaster loans in the 10-county area designated by the President on July 17, 1973.

Russell Hamilton, Jr., regional director of SBA, said that applications must be filled by Sept. 17 for residents located in Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Monroe, Montgomery and Wayne counties.

Hamilton reported that residents in Berks and Lancaster counties may apply at the SBA's Harrisburg Branch Office, 2 North 2nd Street, Harrisburg by the Sept. 17 deadline.

Applicants residing in Bucks, Chester, Delaware and Montgomery counties must apply by Sept. 17th with Northampton county extended to September 24th, and all must apply to the SBA Office at One Decker Square, Bala Cynwyd, Pa., 19004.

The two remaining counties involved in the disaster, Wayne and Columbia, must apply to the Wilkes-Barre office, 34 South Main Street, Wilkes-Barre. Wayne residents have until Sept. 17, and Columbia residents until Sept. 24 to file their applications.

For additional information, in Harrisburg — call 717-782-3846, in Wilkes-Barre — call 717-829-2641, and in Bala Cynwyd — 215-597-3411.

District's staff now complete

E.S. High principal named

By GERARD SUTHERLIN
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Board of School Directors Monday approved the hiring of three new administrators to complete the district administrative staff for 1973-74.

Fred P. Pashkoff, 48, of Mount Pleasant was hired as principal of East Stroudsburg High School at a salary of $19,000 to replace Cummings Platt, who resigned in July.

Pashkoff had been serving for the past two years as principal and curriculum coordinator at Mount Pleasant High School.

Pashkoff holds a B.A. degree from the University of Pittsburgh and an M.A. degree from Columbia University Teachers College. He has done additional graduate work at Columbia, Denver University, Boston University, C.W. Post College, Adelphi University and Hofstra University.

He has served as an assistant college professor, elementary reading specialist, social studies teacher, curriculum director, as principal of the Oakdale, Pa. Boys Home in 1968-69, and as principal of the Maryland Children Center from 1969 to 1971 before moving to Mount Pleasant.

The board approved the hiring of Leon Van Orman as principal of the Smithfield Elementary School in Minisink Hills at a salary of $14,500.

Van Orman takes over a position previously held by Joseph Kulick, who shared the principalship with that of the Bushkill-Middle Smithfield School. Kulick will hold the latter job on a fulltime basis this year.

Van Orman, 38, has been an elementary teacher at the Hudson Middle School in Hudson, N. Y., for the past two years, but has previous experience as an assistant elementary principal and elementary principal in New York and Connecticut.

He holds a B.S. degree from the State University of New York at Potsdam and an M.A. degree from George Washington University. He has done additional graduate work at Siena College and the State University College at Oneonta, N. Y.

The board also approved the hiring of Dr. Charles S. Mancuso of East Amherst, N. Y., to fill the newly created position of administrative assistant to the superintendent for administration and personnel. His salary will be $19,000.

Mancuso, 42, holds a B.S. degree from Fredonia State College, an M.S. degree from Canisius College and an Ed.D. degree in education administration from the University of Buffalo.

Mancuso spent 10 years as an elementary teacher with the Kenmore School District in New York before spending a year with the Western New York School Study Council as a research assistant in 1964-65.

He subsequently served as an administrative intern with the Clarence Schools in New York and an elementary principal in Irondequoit, N. Y., before returning to the Kenmore district as an assistant superintendent in 1969.

In other business the board approved the awarding of a district fuel oil contract to the lowest of two bidders, B. R. Peters, Inc., of East Stroudsburg at a price of $0.1925 per gallon.

The board also approved a contract for a cyclorama curtain in the high school auditorium to Carn's Decorator Service or York for $3,398. This bid had been brought before the board at earlier meetings but held for study because of a specification mix-up.

Hamilton Twp. planners re-elect slate of officers

SCIOTA — The Hamilton Township Planning Commission celebrated its first anniversary Monday night with a reorganization meeting. Robert Warden was re-elected chairman of the board for another year.

Val Robbins was re-elected vice chairman and Elmer Kiefer was re-elected secretary.

Nominations for officers to serve for the coming year were momentarily held up because Warden suggested that the planners should rotate the various offices to provide for an overall stronger committee.

The commission unanimously agreed that he should continue to serve for another one year term, however.

Kiefer was re-elected with the stipulation that he would have help during the coming year with some of his secretarial duties. Warden described Kiefer as performing the job of secretary "almost to perfection."

Ronald Dillman of the Penn-East Corporation, the consulting engineers for the commission, reported that a rough copy of the township proposed zoning ordinance would be ready for review sometime late next month.

The planners scheduled a special work session at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 24, to review their zoning ordinance in detail.

Dillman also presented a section of the proposed comprehensive plan for review; the section dealing with the

Commissioners may scrap renovation of county home

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Construction of new facilities at Pleasant Valley Manor may be the only way Monroe County can meet state requirements for the county home for the elderly.

Proposed renovation of the home to meet regulations may cost the county much more than it had planned for, commissioners reported Monday.

Commissioners have allocated $125,000 of revenue sharing funds for the project.

Therefore, according to commission chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, the county may consider adding a new wing onto the building.

The old building, she suggested, could be used for government offices or social services facilities.

The present manor was built in 1925 and needs a number of improvements, including fire apparatus. The new wing, added in 1965, was also recommended for fire improvements by the Department of Labor and Industry.

However, the list of improvements in the new wing asked for by the department has been found to be in error by RKR Associates, employed by the county for the improvements of the manor.

RKR has told commissioners that some of the items listed as faulty in the new wing are indeed in accordance with regulations. The architects have also informed commissioners and Labor and Industry that other improvements are being acted upon.

Renovations in the old building, however, are numerous and, according to Mrs. Shukaitis, may exceed planned costs.

Furthermore, Mrs. Shukaitis said, if the county was to make improvements, the Department of Labor and Industry could still prohibit its use as a home for the elderly.

"The feeling now is that the money that would be spent on renovations could be spent on a new building," Mrs. Shukaitis said.

"Therefore, we may determine not to make the investment in improvements," she explained.

RKR will bring a corrective report and cost estimates to commissioners Thursday.

Meanwhile, the board will investigate federal and state funding possibilities.

The county must notify the Department of Labor and Industry of compliance with regulations within six months of the department's recommendations — in this case, by January.

Murder hearing date set

NAZARETH — Michael F. Maloney, 21, of Pen Argyl, charged in the Aug. 8 stabbing death of a Bethlehem man at an East Bangor firemen's carnival, will have a hearing at 1:30 p.m. Thursday before District Magistrate Elmo Frey of Nazareth.

Maloney is accused of murdering Guy Merritt Weaver, 21, of 2622 Lafayette Ave., Bethlehem, during a gang fight between groups from the Slate Belt and Bethlehem.

Police said Maloney allegedly stabbed Weaver with a three-inch gravity knife during an argument over a hat. The knife was found at the scene.

Maloney was apprehended by Easton State Police at 3 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 9, in front of his home where he was asleep in a parked car.

Attorneys Ronald Shipman of Pen Argyl and Joel Ziev of Easton were appointed by Judge Alfred Williams to represent Maloney.

Association seeks funding to purchase farm museum

STROUDSBURG — The Historical Farm Assn. has again asked Monroe County Commissioners to seek federal and state funds for the Quiet Valley Farm Museum.

The society is at the brink of a decision to acquire Quiet Valley and requested that commissioners help provide funding for the project.

The group asked specifically for revenue sharing funds from the county and Department of Community Affairs funds from the state.

The historical farm group also asked the commissioners to intercede with The Economic Development Council of Northeast Pennsylvania for bicentennial funds.

In another matter, The Department of Public Welfare (DPW) has notified commissioners of state funds for nutrition programs. DPW commissioners must notify DPW by Dec. 31 of the proper agency to receive funds.

If no notice is forthcoming from commissioners, the state will designate or establish an agency to receive and disburse funds.

The Scranton Sewer Authority has responded to commissioners' "emergency request" for permission for Monroe County liquid waste haulers to deposit waste in the city's plant by promising consideration of it at an Aug. 23 meeting.

The county is considering hiring a part-time clerk for both the Civil Defense and pest control office. An archives librarian is also needed to straighten out old county records stored in the courthouse attic.

However, Commissioner Arlington Martin pointed out that the attic is subject to seasonal temperature fluctuations and would be unsuitable for a fulltime worker.

"We ought to solve that problem before we hire someone to work up there," Martin said. He suggested central air conditioning as well as insulation of the attic.

However, Martin moved to hire a librarian if "someone will work under those conditions."

Commissioners allocated $506.50 to pay the first half of the year's Meals on Wheels bill. The program reported serving an average of 40 meals a day via 200 volunteers.

Mrs. Paul Miller and Mrs. A. Greenwald Gearhart submitted resignations from the Children's Bureau Advisory Committee.

Kidnapping trial underway in Va.

ROANOKE, Va. — The trial of a Milford man accused of the kidnap-murder of a gas station attendant near Staunton, Va., in May 1972, began Monday.

James Ellsworth Jones, 39, of 221 E. George St., is being tried in federal court on the kidnap charge first because it is a federal offense. His trial on the murder charge will come at a later date.

A jury for the trial was chosen Monday, according to a court official, with the government presenting some evidence to establish where the service station attendant was from.

The trial will probably last about three days, he said.

Jones was apprehended by state police in Milford on Aug. 6, 1972, following an anonymous phone call. He is accused of murdering Leland Davenport, 18, whose body was found near Interstate Route 81 in Martinsburg, W. Va., about 120 miles from the service station.

He was taken to the Harrisonburg, Va., jail, but his attorneys obtained a change in venue to Roanoke, about 105 miles away, for the trial.

In addition to the charges in Virginia, Jones is wanted in connection with the robbery of a Dingmans Ferry couple in August, 1971.

Police said Jones and an accomplice, Richard Abner, who was 19 at the time, allegedly stole a car, watch, $280 in cash, a case of beer and a .38 caliber revolver from Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller.

Abner later turned himself in to state police and pleaded guilty to larceny. He received a prison sentence of two to five years.

Police say the revolver they stole from the Millers may have been the murder weapon used on Davenport.

Record play review

Eva Marie Saint thrills audience

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
Family Fare Editor

MOUNTAINHOME — After a summer of fun and frolic at the Pocono Playhouse there was an air of settling down to the business of reality when the Tennessee Williams' play "Summer and Smoke" opened last night.

To use another metaphor after a diet of frothy desserts, it offered the audience something to get their teeth into.

Fresh from a run at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, its star, Eva Marie Saint, scored another artistic triumph in the Poconos in her portrayal of a spinster, daughter of a minister, who is in love with Roistream played by Ronny Cox. They were both so infinitely right in their parts that it's difficult to imagine anyone else playing them.

Auto blaze extinguished

STROUDSBURG — Thirty-five firemen responded to an alarm at 11:51 Monday at the corner of Fourth and Sarah Streets only to find the fire out when they arrived at the scene.

A Jeepster, owned by Edward Bechtel of East Stroudsburg, caught fire in the engine compartment. Bechtel extinguished the blaze before the firemen arrived. The firemen went off duty at 12:05 p.m.

The characters, so tellingly developed by Tennessee Williams, were interpreted by an excellent supporting cast.

Terming it a serious play doesn't mean there wasn't a lot of laughter.

In its setting of 1916, the conflict between sensibility and sensuality between the minister's daughter stressed the spiritual quality of love as opposed to the doctors' more earthy reliance on his anatomy chart.

In its time period it must have been very traumatic.

In today's world where the how-to books on the sensual aspects of love and marriage have practically reduced both to a mathematical equation, it might seem much ado about nothing.

Except for Tennessee Williams uncanny ability to sustain a mood and to probe deeply for what lies under the surface—that's what makes the message of the play as valid today as when it was written.

Well, almost. Although few modern girls would speak of "conjugal felicity," however, few modern girls probably ever get down to the basic honesty which burns through the spinster's heart during the summer when she "suffocated in the smoke from something on fire inside her."

Interestingly enough, the play is directed by Jeffrey Hayden, who is Eva Marie Saint's husband, and one of the bit parts is played by Darrel Hayden, who is their son, and a sophomore at Brandeis University.

Pet show scheduled at park

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dansbury Park concludes its summer recreation program this week with several special events.

A pet show will be held at 2 p.m. today with ribbons awarded to winners in the different categories.

The first annual Junior Olympics swimming and diving competition will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday. Competition will be in separate girls and boys divisions with different age levels.

Activities conclude at 6 p.m. Thursday with the awarding of trophies to all park tournament champions.

A free picnic supper follows the awards.

Tickets for the awards program may be obtained at the park between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. daily.

Chamber debates Monroe planning

STROUDSBURG — A debate on the problems — and blessings — of land development in the Poconos highlighted the meeting of the directors of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce Monday.

W. J. "Mike" Gretkowski suggested the Chamber take a more active role in assuring that the community protect itself primarily through planning and zoning. Joseph Small, Chamber president, defended many of the developers but noted, as did other directors, that there are abuses.

A resolution followed establishing that a subsequent meeting of the directors this fall would include a general meeting on planning with Douglas Williams, county planning administrator, invited to lead the discussion.

Later at a lunch of the full membership at the Penn Stroud Hilton, George Royle, as attorney for the county solid waste haulers, spoke on the compacting station presently in use in Hamilton Township adjacent to the landfill. He said the haulers plan expansion with compacting sites near Tobyhanna and in one of the Smithfields.

An important factor in the cost of maintaining compacting stations, he said, is the distance the trash must be hauled from its source.

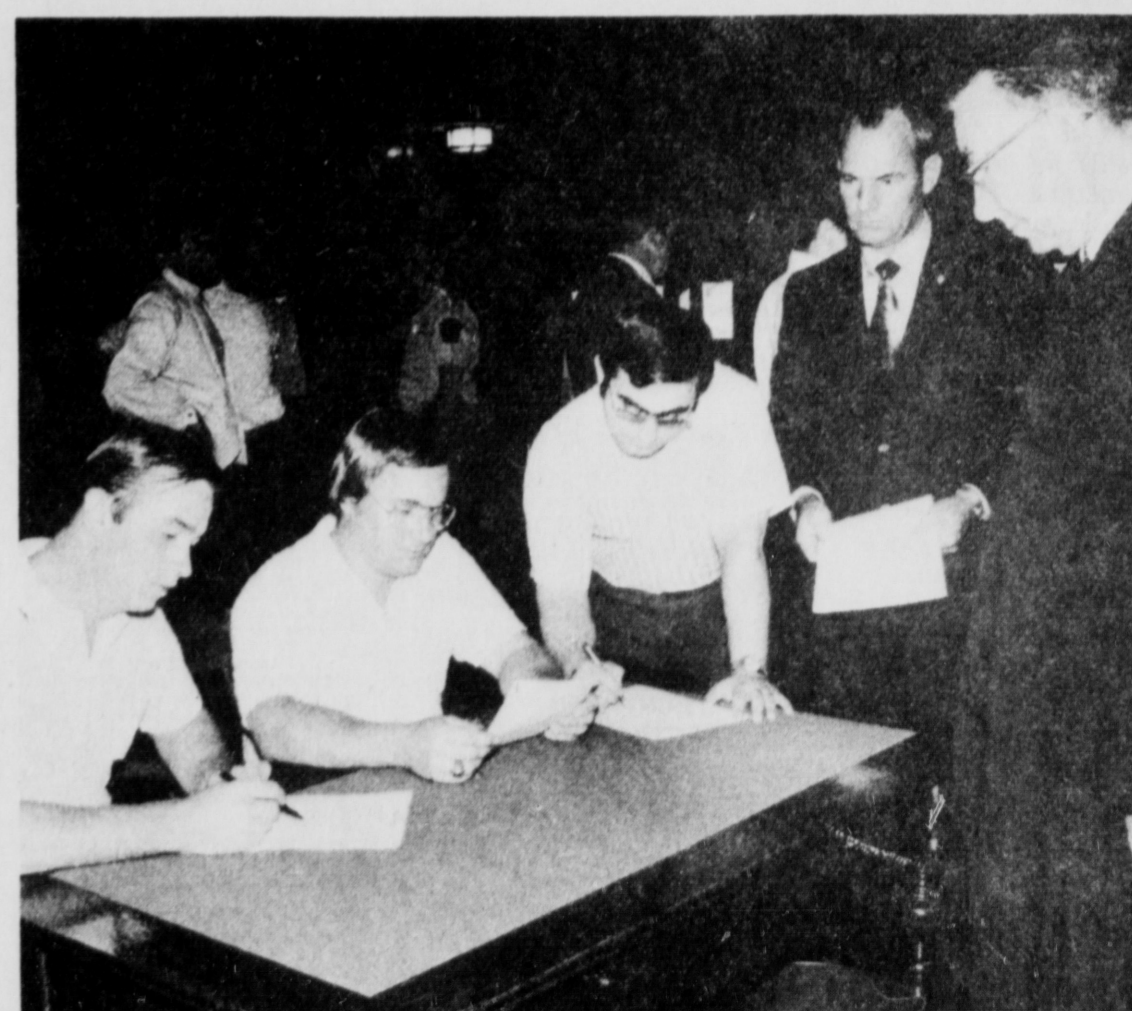

He estimated haulers' expense at about 60 cents per mile. Thus "localizing" the compacting stations would tend to make the service cheaper for consumers.

Royle said he hoped residents would inspect the new compacting station because he feels a major effort is being made to make the area attractive. He pointed out the haulers have $100,000 invested in the enterprise and don't want to antagonize neighbors or customers.

In other action at the morning meeting directors:

— Heard a report from Ralph Reppert, executive director, that the Tobyhanna Depot was seeking housing for an anticipated 50 newcomers being transferred.

— Voted to suggest to the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad that it establish a daily commuter service between Mount Pocono and New York City.

Pursuit rules change

East Stroudsburg patrolmen Jack Stack, Justin Howe and Robert Perfetti sign papers Monday before East Stroudsburg Police Chief Charles McDonald, second from right, and Judge Arlington W. Williams during swearing-in ceremonies at the courthouse. Police in Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Stroud Twp. are now permitted to pursue criminals over each other's borders. # Americans capture first 'University' gold medals

Soviet Union's Semeon Kotchar is congratulated by team members as he crosses the finish line Monday to win the 4x400 relay during the University Games in Moscow. Moments later, the Soviet team was disqualified for a second lap incident, giving the win and gold medal to the United States.

(UPI Wirephoto)

MOSCOW (UPI)—The United States won its first two gold medals of the World University Games Monday, one of them in a disputed contest with the Russians that threw the windup of the track and field competition into an uproar.

The Americans took golds in the mens spring and 1600-meter relays.

They won the 1600-meter when Russian Valery Urchenko was disqualified for colliding with Darwin Bond of Kingsport, Tenn., on the second lap. The Russians, who finished with 17 of the 34 gold medals in track and field, protested their disqualification, touching off a long discussion on the field after all the events were over.

Officials finally rejected the Soviet protest. But the uproar forced them to postpone the medal award ceremony until tonight.

The Russians took six gold medals in track and field Monday night, boosting their total for all events after six days to 44.

The Americans were awarded the disputed relay race in a time of 3:04.4.

After all events had been completed, athletes of the various nations lined up on the field at Lenin Stadium for the award ceremony. But the Soviet protest of the American victory ensued, and finally the athletes sprawled on the grass in anticipation of a long discussion.

At one point the American runners jumped onto the winners stand, smiling broadly, and raised their arms in a victory salute as the Russian crowd laughed and applauded.

Finally, U.S. track coach Joe Vigil said officials had upheld the U.S. victory but "told us we wouldn't get our medals until tomorrow."

In the sprint relay, the American quartet of Thomas Whitley of Montgomery, Ala., Wardell Gilbreath of Amarillo, Texas, Larry Brown of Jersey City, N.J., and Steve Riddick of Norfolk, Va., easily beat the second-place Soviets in 39.1, a new university games record.

Mikhail Zhelovoski narrowly edged Glenn Herold of Watertown, Wis. (University of Wisconsin) in the 5,000-meters with a winning time of 13:41.4.

Herold passed the race leader, Julian Goater of Britain, with about 250 meters to go, but was himself overtaken in the final 50 meters. "I thought I could outkick him," Herold said afterward. "I gave it everything I had, but it just wasn't enough. I wanted him bad."

In the glamour event of the day—the 1,500-meters, Britains Frank Clemente broke the Soviet domination with a new university games record of 3:42.3. A pace behind in 3:42.7

came Tony Waldrop of Columbus, N.C. (North Carolina University), with Reginald McAfee of Cincinnati, Ohio (University of North Carolina) third across the line in 3:43.2.

A fleet Finnish girl, Mona-Lisa Pursiainen, won her second gold medal in the women's 200-meters in 22.4 seconds. The tall, lanky, 22-year-old blonde won the 100-meters Friday in 11.4.

Nadezhda Chizhova of the Soviet Union, world and Olympic champion in the shot put, easily won her event with a heave of 20.82 meters.

Track and field dominated the program Monday, as basketball players took a day off.

Foster confident of title defense

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—Light heavyweight champion Bob Foster will attempt to defend his title for a record 11th time here tonight against South African challenger Pierre Fourie, in a bout contrasting Fourie's speed with Foster's power.

Foster, who has successfully defended his title 10 times since knocking out Dick Tiger in Madison Square Garden on May 4, 1968, said he was looking for a quick knockout.

"I'm not taking any chances," said the 34-year-old champion. "I'll knock him out in the first round if I can."

Foster, whose last fight was nine months ago against former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, has never lost to a light heavyweight in a career which shows 49 wins, six losses, and 42 knockouts. All of his losses have been to heavyweights.

Considered one of the hardest punchers in light heavyweight history, Foster said he was not concerned with Fourie's speed, despite the challenger's No. 1 ranking.

"He's just another fighter. They name the opponents and I just fight them," said the champion.

Foster, whose last title defense was a 14th round knockout of Chris Finnegan in London last September, has knocked out his opponent in nine of his past title defenses.

His bout tonight will break the old record of 10 by former champion Archie Moore.

Fourie, who got his first look at television when he arrived in the United States to train, spent Monday relaxing in front of a TV set and reading.

Like Foster, Fourie has never lost to a fighter in the light heavyweight division. His record reads 46-1-1.

More noted for his speed than his punching ability, Fourie said he thinks he can beat Foster if the bout goes the 15 rounds.

"His age would work against him the longer the fight goes and the fact he's been off for so long will also hurt him," Fourie said.

Fourie, who has said he has a "secret plan" to beat Foster also discounts the seven-inch reach and height advantage enjoyed by the champion.

"I'd rather fight a taller man," said the South African. "I've fought men 6-3 before. A small man is much more compact and not as easy to hit."

The South African challenger will earn $10,000 while Foster has been guaranteed a minimum of $75,000.

A near capacity crowd of 18,000 persons is expected to turn out for the bout which will mark Foster's first title defense in his hometown.

Reds earn 8-3 victory on Bench single in 16th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Johnny Bench drove in the winning run with a single through the middle in the 16th inning Monday and the Cincinnati Reds added four more runs to beat the New York Mets 8-3.

Denis Menke and Tony Perez started the winning rally with singles and, with one out, the Mets gambled by allowing left-handed reliever Tug McGraw to pitch to the righthanded-hitting Bench, who leads the National League in RBIs with 91.

Bench singled up the middle to score Menke with the go-ahead run, and then a walk, a two-run single by Cesar Geronimo, and a two-run triple by Darrell Chaney followed.

Clay Carroll, the last of four Cincinnati pitchers, picked up his fifth victory.

The Reds had been ahead 3-2 in the 13th inning when Pete Rose and Joe Morgan singled and Rose scored on Menke's squeeze bunt, but the Mets came back to tie it on a walk to Felix Millan, a double by Rusty Staub—his fourth hit of the game—and a sacrifice fly by Cleon Jones.

The Mets tied the game 2-2 with two runs in the sixth inning when starting pitcher Tom Seaver led off with a double. Millan blooped a double to right to score Seaver. Staub's single moved Millan to third, and John Milner's sacrifice fly sent Millan home.

Larry Stahl put Cincinnati ahead 1-0 with a line drive, 400-foot homer in the second inning. Joe Morgan hit an 0-2

Fred Waring 'Four Ball' tourney set

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — The ninth annual Fred Waring Four Ball golf tournament gets underway today with qualifying at Shawnee Country Club for a large group of players entered from across the United States.

The tournament, which runs through Sunday, will comprise of four age group flights, plus the championship flight. Following completion of the qualifying round, the golfers not qualifying for the championship flight will be bracketed into age group flights as follows: under 40, 40-49, 50-59 and over 60.

Individual scores compete for trophies by medal play in the qualifying round. In the remainder of the tournament, play will be conducted on a match play, better-ball-of-partners basis.

All golfers, whether or not they lose a match, will compete for the entire five days of the tournament. Losers remain within their flights and play in a mini-bracket. Thus, four winners will surface in each flight.

Finals in the tournament will be held Saturday. At the same time the four-ball tournament is going on, a ladies' golf tournament will also be conducted, within the structure of the four-ball.

Flights have been designated as seasons: 40 and under, spring; 40-49, summer; 50-59, autumn and 60 and over, winter. Players from California, Texas, Michigan, Florida, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Connecticut and Maine comprise just some of the nationwide field.

This woman is taking your money.

Just as though she were reaching in your pocket. Because she's a shoplifter. Every shopping day, thousands of shoplifters like her cost stores literally millions of dollars in merchandise. Then, in order to stay in business, stores are forced to raise their prices. And you wind up paying more money. Because of shoplifters. Of course, it's unfair to honest shoppers. So, the stores are getting tougher on shoplifters. And now, with the most modern electronic equipment, and additional security personnel, more and more shoplifters are getting caught.

If you know a shoplifter, pass the word. That shoplifters pay fines. That shoplifters go to jail. And that shoplifters—that shoplifters are really stealing from you.

Investors lose interest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices sagged Monday under the weight of investor apathy, as the latest rise in the prime lending rate stifled buying interest and sent the Dow to a 20-month low in the year's slowest trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 4.44 to 867.40, its lowest closing reading since Dec. 15, 1971, when the average of 30 blue chips touched 863.76. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 0.70 to 101.61. The average price of a NYSE common share skidded 26 cents.

Declines topped advances, 938 to 412, among 1,746 issues traded. Volume totaled only 8,970,000 shares, lightest since Oct. 9, 1972, when turnover totaled 7,945,020 shares Friday's volume was 11,113,010 shares.

Analysts largely blamed a 1/4-point rise to 9 1/2 per cent in the prime lending rate for the market's weakness. About half a dozen of the nation's banks announced increases Monday, led by First National Bank of Chicago.

Commenting on the latest rise in the prime, Lucien Hooper of W. E. Hutton said, "I feel we're getting near the peak. The Federal Reserve's strategy has been to get interest rates up in order to strengthen the dollar, and last week's dollar rally probably bears that out."

The dollar was in trouble Monday, however, closing sharply lower at Frankfurt, London, Paris and Zurich, and analysts said the currency's decline into weakness further contributed to Wall Street's pessimistic mood.

"The Street is discouraged, licked, and losing a lot of money," Hooper said.

Travelodge was the volume leader, up 1/4 to 11% on 159,500 shares. Tandy Corp. was second, and dropped 3/4 to 18 1/2 on 137,600 shares, including a 129,900-share block at 18.

Gold mining issues bucked the declining trend, rising on the strength of higher bullion prices abroad. Campbell Red Lake added 3 1/2, Dome Mines 1 1/2, Homestake Mining 1 1/2, ASA Ltd. 1 1/2.

Glamorous moved broadly lower. Walt Disney slid 3 3/4, Polaroid 2 1/4, Xerox and Curtiss-Wright 1 1/2 each, and Schlumberger 1 1/4.

Burroughs fell 3 1/4, and Motorola 1, leading the lower electronics issues.

Auto protection

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The summer vacation stampede is now rushing toward its Labor Day climax — with tens of millions of you driving out of state or into Canada and, as a result, millions of you also becoming involved in auto accidents, minor or major, far away from home.

This being a certainty, it is important for you to know that new auto insurance coverage is now available to you free of charge which will:

— Meet the specific no-fault requirements of other states or the Canadian provinces (19 states now have some form of no-fault law).

— Meet the financial responsibility laws which differ in each state and Canadian province. These laws require drivers involved in auto accidents to furnish proof of financial responsibility (usually done in the form of auto liability insurance) up to specified amounts — but the problem is that the amounts differ from state to state and between provinces.

If you are planning to drive out of state, check at once with your insurance agent to make sure your auto policy meets the requirements of other areas. Most of the nation's auto insurers will give you free of charge a special out-of-state endorsement which extends your present insurance policy to provide the kind and amount of protection you need.

For instance, say you drive into a state or Canadian province which requires you to have no-fault protection.

States which have enacted some form of no-fault benefits include: Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Hawaii, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah and Virginia. No-fault simply means that you collect from your own insurance company for certain medical and economic losses regardless of who was to blame for the accident.

The special out-of-state endorsement would make you eligible immediately for no-fault benefits.

Or say your special out-of-state endorsement adjusts your policy to comply with state financial responsibility laws. Pennsylvania's law requires motorists with bodily injury liability insurance to carry it in minimum amounts of $20,000 per accident. In contrast, the financial responsibility laws in states such as California, Ohio, Maine and Florida require that your liability insurance policy be as high as $40,000. In Canada, the requirements go up to $50,000.

With the new endorsement, you are covered for the legally required amount — no matter what state or Canadian province your automobile accident takes place in.

A surprisingly large 42 per cent of the U.S. population is now covered by no-fault auto insurance benefits, estimates the American Mutual Insurance Alliance, a national trade group, and the AMIA predicts that this figure could jump to 80 per cent by the end of next year.

Under the no-fault system, if you are the injured party, you look to your own insurance company for compensation of basic medical expenses and losses in wages, regardless of who caused the accident. Because fault does not have to be decided prior to payments, money for your doctor and hospital bills, as well as for your living expenses, is immediately available.

In addition, most of the 19 state no-fault benefit laws contain clauses to curb overpayment of minor claims by prohibiting lawsuits for "pain and suffering" unless the injury is serious. All of the laws, though, preserve the right of the innocent victim of an accident to collect in full for all economic losses and for any permanent impairment or serious disruption of the victim's life.

These are the broad principles of no-fault, and within them, the individual state laws take various forms — each state writing in provisions to meet its specific circumstances.

Because of these variations and because many states have not yet passed no-fault legislation, there is no disputing your need for the new protection if you are driving from one state to another.

More than 500 insurance companies have adopted the new insurance coverage plan so far, and the AMIA says that by itself competition within the industry will force the holdouts to go along. Use the protection. Check up on it at once. It's free.

STROUDSBURG — Paul Gerrity, a native of Scranton and a former clergyman for 18 years, is opening a personal counseling office at 814 Monroe Street, Stroudsburg.

Gerrity said his counseling service is geared to help people with emotional problems. He explained that counseling does not interfere with professional psychiatric treatment.

"The counselor is not a psychiatrist or psychologist and does not pretend to be. His principal role is to be an objective listener, and who by reason of education is familiar enough with psychological studies to know the difference between a normal human problem and emotional sickness," Gerrity said.

Gerrity said many people carry problems within themselves simply because no one wants to take the time to listen to them.

"Talking and listening are two basic needs in man. It may not be a pleasant fact to admit that we are in need of professional listeners, but the fact is there," he said.

According to Gerrity, personal counseling is concerned with a person's problems and does not approach an individual as being emotionally sick. The counselor will refer a patient to a psychiatrist if he feels such treatment would be necessary or beneficial.

Gerrity attended Holy Cross Junior College, Dunkirk, N.Y., and received bachelor and master degrees in philosophy and theology from St. Michael's College, Union City, N.J.

He has undergone total psychotherapy at the Institute of the Living, Hartford, Conn., one of the foremost psychiatric centers in the United States.

Gerrity is also known in his lectures on the international radio program, "Crossroads," the most recent series entitled "Attitudes Toward Change."

Individuals seeking personal counseling can make an appointment between 9 a.m. and 12 p.m. or 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

Presently a resident of Los Angeles, Shain joined Atlantic Richfield (then The Atlantic Refining Co.) in Philadelphia in 1945. He undertook a number of assignments in the Employee and Public Relations Department, including service in South America, before being appointed manager of Public Relations. He was elected a vice president in June of 1972; Shain is a graduate of the Temple University School of Journalism.

Slack, 48, of Anchorage, has been manager of the South Alaska District, North American Producing Division, since 1970. He will assume his new office at corporate headquarters in Los Angeles, Slack joined the company in 1965 as senior research geophysicist in Dallas, by 1967 had advanced to director of seismic record improvement research and two years later was named assistant chief geophysicist for exploration.

He holds a bachelor's degree in engineering physics from Queens University and Masters and Doctorate degrees in physics and geophysics from the University of Toronto.

Shain vice president

LOS ANGELES — Atlantic Richfield Company has announced the appointment of William G. Shain to the newly established position of vice president of Corporate Relations, and named Dr. Howard A. Slack to succeed Shain as head of the Public Relations Division. Both appointments are effective Sept. 1, Edward M. Benson, Jr., executive vice president, said.

He has undergone total psychotherapy at the Institute of the Living, Hartford, Conn., one of the foremost psychiatric centers in the United States.

Gerrity is also known in his lectures on the international radio program, "Crossroads," the most recent series entitled "Attitudes Toward Change."

Individuals seeking personal counseling can make an appointment between 9 a.m. and 12 p.m. or 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

Presently a resident of Los Angeles, Shain joined Atlantic Richfield (then The Atlantic Refining Co.) in Philadelphia in 1945. He undertook a number of assignments in the Employee and Public Relations Department, including service in South America, before being appointed manager of Public Relations. He was elected a vice president in June of 1972; Shain is a graduate of the Temple University School of Journalism.

Slack, 48, of Anchorage, has been manager of the South Alaska District, North American Producing Division, since 1970. He will assume his new office at corporate headquarters in Los Angeles, Slack joined the company in 1965 as senior research geophysicist in Dallas, by 1967 had advanced to director of seismic record improvement research and two years later was named assistant chief geophysicist for exploration.

He holds a bachelor's degree in engineering physics from Queens University and Masters and Doctorate degrees in physics and geophysics from the University of Toronto.

Leasing on increase

Lease car, abandon headaches

By LAWRENCE MOSHER
Dow Jones-Ottawa News

NEW YORK — If you are tired of owning a car, whereby your sanity, humor and financial standing may always seem to be at the mercy of your garage mechanic, consider leasing. Unless your leased car is deductible as a business expense, you'll probably pay a little more. But you may be happier.

The number of leased automobiles increased to 1,135,000 last year from 400,000 in 1961. Some 13 per cent of all cars produced in 1972 for domestic consumption were leased rather than sold. This is double the rate of a decade ago.

Fleet leasing by big corporations used to dominate the market. That and daily rentals still account for most lease customers. But more individuals are leasing rather than buying, especially if they have been getting a new car every two or three years. Some 45 per cent of the total leasing market was to individuals in 1971, the National Automobile Dealers Association reports. This figure, however, also reflects car rentals.

"As they begin to realize the closeness in the cost, more people are beginning to lease," says Elliott M. Kessler, owner of Executive Auto Leasing, a small, 1,000-car operation in the Washington, D.C., area. "For the person who trades every two years there's almost no difference in cost between leasing and buying."

Service discouragement
"People are becoming discouraged about service. Auto dealers just aren't set up to provide the service needed. As soon as new-car warranties run out owners breathe a sigh of relief and abandon the dealers for a little garage somewhere."

Kessler has a 20-car shop where 20 of his 25 employees work; the mechanics are "all factory-trained," he says. Nearly all his customers, individuals and companies alike, buy full-service contracts that cover everything but insurance and gasoline. Kessler provides a courtesy car when the leased car needs service, and picks up and delivers the car to the office or home. Snow tires are put on in winter.

For all of this, over a two-year period, Kessler charges from $120 a month for a Vega or Pinto, to $285 for a Mark IV Continental. All cars come equipped with air conditioning, power steering and brakes, radio (sometimes including FM), automatic transmission, white-wall tires and a remote-controlled side-view mirror. At the end of two years the customer merely returns the car.

"We know our cars, and we maintain them well," Kessler says. "Our profit motive is to keep these autos in good shape." It's a good point that car dealers and garages that repair other people's cars can't make.

Pays to shop around
It pays to shop around; lease contract details vary widely.

Some car lessors quote prices that include registration, tag, and tax costs; others don't. Insurance is another item that may or may not be covered. Some dealers start with a basic price that covers just the car and nothing else. So the customer should be careful to note exactly what is offered.

Prices also vary for similar cars leased under comparable terms. Kessler's full-service lease, including insurance, for a 1974 Impala four-door is $190 a month. Three competitors quote prices ranging from $170 to $210.

Auto lease contracts are either "closed-end" or "open-end" the closed-end contract simply has the customer turn the car over to the lessor at the end of the contract.

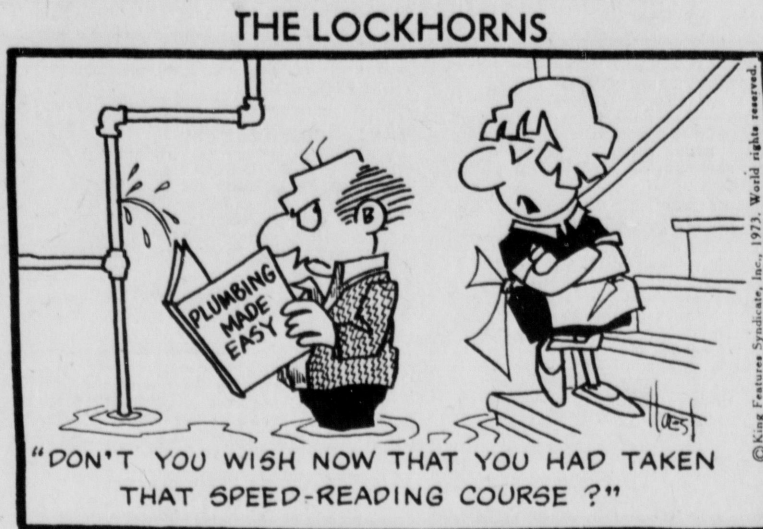

The open-end lease is trickier. Here the customer agrees in advance to buy the car at the end of the contract period at a certain price, or to guarantee to the lessor a certain price when the car is sold to someone else. If the car is sold for less than the agreed price, the customer has to make up the difference. If the car goes for a higher amount, the customer gets the difference. Either way, the lessor gets his anticipated price and profit.

Executive auto leasing's Kessler warns against "the unscrupulous lessor who advertises a rate of, say, $76 a month, but does not tell you what you'll have to pay at the end of the contract."

The open-end contract's guaranteed price will be in the fine print, which an unwary customer might not read.

An individual may not save money by leasing a car. But depending on his tax bracket, and the amount of financing he needs to buy a car, he may find that leasing is not much more costly than buying a car. Whether to lease or not often will depend on how the customer values the extra service and convenience provided in leasing.

Skylab's pets form unique zoo

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts are the first spacemen to have a house full of pets with them as they orbit the Earth on their 59-day scientific research mission.

The Skylab manager, including two common household spiders, an aquarium full of fish, a swarm of vinegar gnats and a half dozen pocket mice, are not along just for the ride of the crew to keep the crewmen company.

Each of the little creatures is part of a scientific experiment being conducted aboard the 86-ton station.

Astronauts Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma are conducting a total of more than 60 investigations during their journey in which they hope to double man's space endurance record.

Space hatchery

The fish, two tiny "brackish water" minnows 3/4 of an inch long, are being used to determine if fish show any physiological disorientation when exposed to weightlessness.

The first two minnows are expected to live about two weeks, and about 50 fish eggs are also aboard should hatch during the second week of the flight, giving the crew three to four weeks of observation.

Garriott, the mission scientist, asked for the fish to be made part of his crew's scientific investigations. While in the natural habitat of fish—water—resembles weightlessness, they have a balancing apparatus similar to man, and they are affected by gravity.

The pair of spiders, named Arabella and Anita, are part of an experiment proposed by 17-year-old Judith Miles of Lexington, Mass., and is one of 19 investigations proposed by high school students.

Significant experiment

The Skylab 2 space mascots will live in a glass cage with movie cameras and still cameras attached to it to record the spiders' attempts to spin a web without the help of gravity.

Arabella, the prime spider to be studied, and Anita are of the same cross species, a type known to build a highly geometric web.

"I'm afraid the little spider is going to steal the show," said Lousma recently in an interview. "It's a significant experiment but compared to the others it's pretty small."

The six pocket mice will live during the eight-week space flight in a completely dark cage, with an atmosphere equivalent to sea level, a relative humidity of 60 per cent and a temperatures of 60 degrees.

The tiny animals' reaction to zero gravity will be studied to determine if space flight alters the daily physiological rhythms of mammals.

The vinegar gnats are part of the same experiment, and will be watched to see if their natural biological cycle is disturbed by weightlessness.

Researchers hope to use all the animal experiments to add to knowledge about the reaction of all living creatures to prolonged periods in space.

Can anyone do what you do any better?

Probably not. All things considered you do what you do pretty doggone well. After all, no one has taken your job. And you're eating regularly. But...

But have you ever considered what doing your job just a little better might mean? Money. Cold hard coin of the realm.

If each of us cared just a smidge more about what we do for a living, we could actually turn that inflationary spiral around. Better products, better service and better management would mean savings for all of us. Savings of much of the cash and frayed nerves it's costing us now for repairs and inefficiency.

Point two. By taking more pride in our work we'll more than likely see America regaining its strength in the competitive world trade arena. When the balance of payments swings our way again we'll all be better off economically.

So you see—the only person who can really do what you do any better is you.

Now its hospitals in era of drive-ins

By DIANE K. SHAH
Dow Jones-Ottaway News
NEW YORK — In an era of drive-in restaurants, drive-in banks, and even drive-in dog shampoos — why not drive-in hospitals?

Your city already may have one.

In an attempt to increase hospital efficiency, provide greater convenience to patients, and reduce medical costs to both, many hospitals are now offering same-day surgical services. Check in at breakfast time and be home for dinner. Comments one drive-in patient: "it makes you feel less sick."

Speedy hospitalization also makes you feel more cheerful when you receive the bill. Typically, out-patient service cuts medical expenses 30 to 50 per cent. A dilatation and curettage of the uterus (D and C) costs a woman about $375 at the George Washington University Hospital in Washington, D.C., if she is admitted overnight. On an outpatient basis, the cost is about $170. Not only is an overnight room charge eliminated, but fewer lab tests are necessary, the hospital's laundry bills are reduced, and the patient is spared the cost (and aggravation) of several days of visits by temperature-taking, blood-counting nurses.

The catch: only certain kinds of surgery are now being performed on an outpatient, or "ambulatory," basis. These are usually simple procedures in which there will be little blood loss and no — or very minor — postoperative complications.

Among the outpatient operations now being performed: the D and C, excision of benign breast tumors, adenoidectomies, some tonsillectomies, simple hernia repairs, removal of piles, cysts, and ganglia (tumors on tendons), draining of fluid in the eardrum, and many cosmetic procedures including face lifts and silicone injections.

Because hospitals have been cautious about what operations they will perform, and upon whom, most patients have gone home right on schedule. At the George Washington University Hospital, which has been running an outpatient surgical clinic since 1966, only one per cent of the 14,000 drive-in patients have had to stay overnight.

At the Norwalk, (Conn.) Hospital, where there had been a bed shortage for 12 years, the new outpatient surgical clinic now handles 10 per cent of the hospital's operations and soon will be expanded to handle 25 per cent. "Besides saving people 30 to 40 per cent," says Norman A. Brady, the hospital president, "it's meant we have open beds for acutely ill patients."

Many hospitals only began offering outpatient surgery in the last few years. Though the American Hospital Association has no official figures on how many hospitals offer this service, every large city and many small ones have hospitals that do. Medical experts believe that 20 to 40 per cent of operations now requiring hospital admittance can be performed on an outpatient basis.

The trend may be towards more facilities like the surgicenter in Phoenix. A 3½-year-old facility designed exclusively for one-day service, it was conceived and paid for by two prominent Phoenix anesthesiologists, Dr. Wallace A. Reed, 57, and Dr. John L. Ford, 52, and developed with the support of the local medical community.

Says Reed: "we felt that many people were needlessly admitted to hospitals just so their insurance would cover the costs. It took a while, but we finally convinced insurance companies that it was to their benefit to pay for outpatient service as well."

The Surgicenter not only offers such touches as assigning one nurse to see a patient through the entire stay (typically 3½ hours), but the same nurse will also perform the unheard-of task of calling the next day to see if everything's okay. Average cost saving over overnight admissions in general hospitals: $130.

Another advantage: "we're making use of the best paramedical help there is, the family," says Reed. Babies who undergo surgery can be with their mothers immediately before and after the operation. "This not only makes the mother feel better," Reed says, "but it won't interrupt a breast-feeding schedule."

'Executive nomads' life hardest on their wives

By MARY BRALOVE
Dow Jones-Ottaway News
MIDDLETOWN, N.J. — Anne Adams is half apologetic about showing a visitor around her new suburban home. Although it's a three-bedroom ranch house on a generous half acre of land, Mrs. Adams thinks it isn't nearly as nice as her former homes in Hartford, Conn., Lexington, Mass., Portsmouth, R.I., or Wellesley, Mass.

Over the past nine years, she has settled into five houses and two apartments in six different cities. Although Brook Road in this suburban New Jersey development is her latest address, it won't be her last. For like many of her neighbors, she'll be moving on.

Some 40 million Americans move each year, and moving companies estimate corporate transfers propel over two and a half million of them. But Anne Adams belongs to a special group of these mobile Americans to whom moving is one of the few constants in their lives. They are wives of "executive nomads."

Although no van line charts their numbers, these women trail across the country following their husbands' careers. They go where the challenging job is, where the big opportunity opens up or where the next step in the corporate ladder leads. Some move with the energy that comes from being the push behind their corporate go-getter. Others, no less capable or supportive, move with the painful awareness of the personal costs of success.

Such a transient life saps the strongest women and breaks the brittle. With each move, these executive wives are wrenched from friends, pulled from community involvement and often cut off from their own careers.

Casualties of success
Some become ignored casualties of success, dependent on alcohol, tranquilizers or barbiturates. Others simply run out of gas, depression experts say. These women are clinically depressed, lacking hope or desire, human sacrifices to upward mobility. "Moving is a severe trauma probably as great as divorce," says Robert Seidenberg, a Syracuse, N.Y., psychiatrist, many of whose patients are victims of multi-moves. "It's like uprooting a tree or a bush — you simply can't flourish transplanted five or six times."

No matter how practiced the family, each move still occasions fears and uncertainties. "You don't know what you're afraid of them, too," says Mrs. Adams, mother of 3½ year-old Brooks Jr. and six-year-old Paige.

"You don't want them to be lonely. You want them to meet friends, and you want the same things for yourself."

In the rush to get ahead, many husbands brush aside such fears. Most typically, they rush home and blurt out: "Honey, I've got great news — we're moving to Des Moines!" According to Dr. Seidenberg and others, the news carries a very different import for their wives.

Just another wife
For husbands adjusting to a new community is easier. With each move they carry transferable career credentials and status. On the other hand, their wives start from scratch. In a new community where she knows no one, the executive nomad's wife is just another wife on the block with no identity of her own.

"In their old communities, the wives have been able to achieve some personal identity, in club or volunteer work, or they might have been known as good party givers," explains Dr. Seidenberg. "Then to renounce this maybe two or three times and start all over at the bottom — this is an inordinate kind of trauma most men couldn't take."

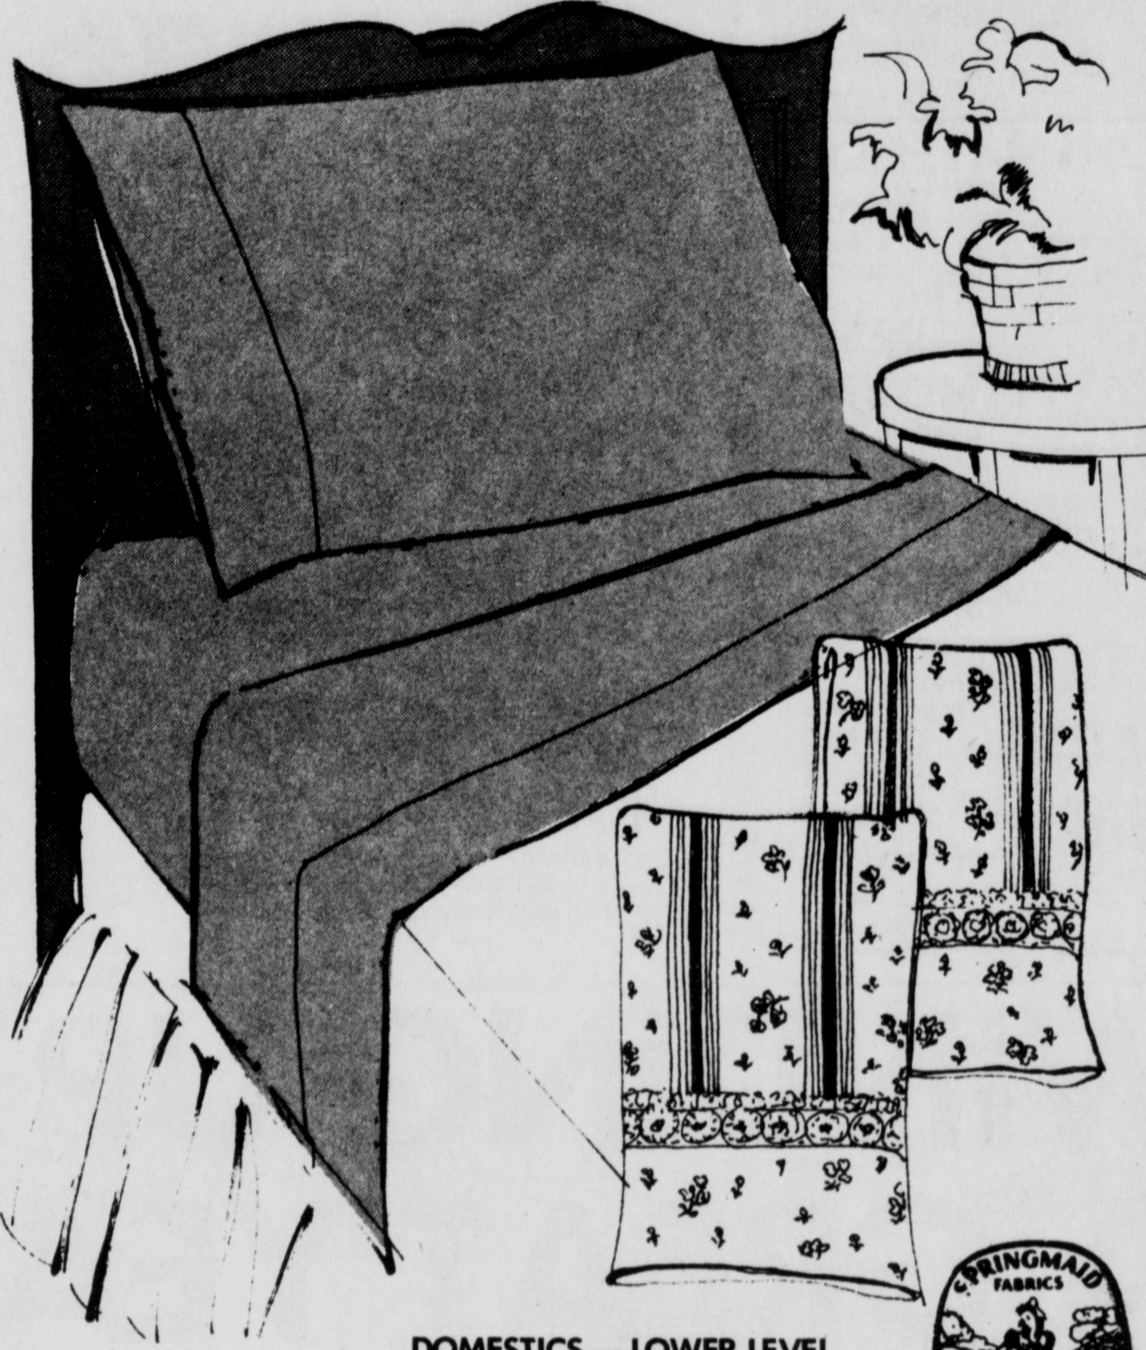

Dr. Seidenberg recalls one patient who had moved five times in seven years, following her husband's career as a chemist. When they came to Syracuse, the 25-year-old housewife got a real-estate job that she enjoyed and did well at. But her husband objected to her working weekends and forced her to give up her job.

Four months later, she came to Dr. Seidenberg saying she had suicidal feelings. "Quitting her job was the last straw after all these other renunciations," Dr. Seidenberg says. "Typically, she thought she'd do violence. She didn't see the violence that had been done to her."

According to Dr. Seidenberg, each move brings greater personal and marital pressures. Often the accumulated strain becomes unbearable. Anne Adams remembers, for instance, that Friday night last March when she met her husband for drinks and an early dinner. He had been out of town for a week, and when they met they had to get reacquainted. She told him what had happened to her during the week, and after three scotch-and-waters she realized how inconsequential her concerns must seem to him. She began to cry, and all the pent-up loneliness and depression poured out. Finally, she recalls, she screamed: "I hate your job! — and I wish I had it!"
